A silver maple to beautify a new section of the Holy Angels Cemetery, Darboy, was planted as part of the Arbor Day observance Friday by a Cub Pack and a 4-H Club, sponsored by the Leo Van Roy Post 265 of the American Legion. End motorcycle surtax, state legislator urges

Post Crescent Madison Bureau

MADISON — A leading member of the state legislature says that the failure to locate acceptable sites for off-the-road motorcycle recreation areas after four years of search shows that the special levy upon motorcyclists for the financing of such facilities was a mistake.

grep. Lewis Mittness of Janesville, chairman of the assembly committee on natural resources, is the sponsor of a bill to cancel the $2 a year license surcharge, abandon the motorcycle park program as impracticable, and to transfer $400,000 in funds already accumulated through the surcharge to the state general parks improvement budget.

"We are taking unfair advantage of these motorcycle owners when it is clear that the state cannot provide the facilities for which this surcharge was imposed," Mittness said, adding that his committee will hold a hearing during the month to explain the state's problem to the motorcyclists and to listen to their views.

There are about 68,000 motorcycles licensed in Wisconsin. The basic license charge was $5 until 1970, when the $2 surcharge was added at the request of motorcycle clubs which sought state assistance in developing a series of off-the-road recreation areas.

But the department of natural resources has been repeatedly rebuffed by neighborhood residents when it has located what it regarded as suitable sites. Resistance has evidently resulted from fears of invasions by rowdy strangers travelling gang-like, as depicted in recent years in other parts of the country.

The most recent resistance came when DNR suggested a site in Mittness' home county of Rock, near the city of Janesville. State officials then said they would explore the possibility of a site within the spacious state military reservation at Camp McCoy, which is remote from most of the population centers of the state, however.

Telephone association warns new tax law would increase rates

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau

MADISON — A bill sponsored by the state Department of Revenue, ostensibly for technical correction of a law, would have the result of adding a million dollars a year to the cost of telephone service by Wisconsin subscribers, the Wisconsin State Telephone association has complained in a statement to a legislative committee.

The Association said that the revision would spread the sales tax to all services offered by telephone utilities, including signal circuits, private line circuits, data circuits, service connection charges, and others with the result that the state would gain a revenue boost of about 10 per cent. Sales tax receipts on telephone communications now aggregate $10,000,000 yearly, the Association said.

Auto trouble shooters named at FVTI for regional competition

The two students who will represent Fox Valley Technical Institute in the auto trouble shooting contest May 16 in Madison have been selected.

Marlyn L. Carpenter, Omro, and John W. Verneen, Appleton, will compete with other teams from throughout the state for the regional trophy. Winners of the 113 regional contests in the country will receive an all-expenses paid trip to Plymouth's National Trouble Shooting Contest in June in Boston.

The students work on a car in which a series of malfunctions has been arranged to determine which team can most quickly and accurately find and fix the problems.

Pilot project of Appleton Public Schools

Problems are identified at an early age

BY CAROL HANSON
Post-Crescent staff writer

A study project begun when funding was made available to the Appleton Public Schools by the federal government in June of 1971 has evolved since that time from study to action as the first round-up of youngsters in the four-year-old age group was tried recently with a group of 20 youngsters at McKinley Elementary School. Similar in concept to the Kindergarten-Round-Up sponsored recently by the Appleton Public Schools in cooperation with the Junior Woman's Club, this effort went one step farther, involving parents in an interview with a school social worker.

Added in order to learn from parents about their children in the home situation, the interview was an extension of what was to be learned through the round-up.

The original concept of the project revolved around the belief that a child's need for a better self-concept can best be met by early identification of psychological and educational assets and deficits. Identification areas were designated as language development, motor and visual perception, social and emotional adjustments and auditory and visual problems.

After the screening where children were even observed during play situations, data was to be assessed and evaluated by those serving on the project committee. If a more thorough evaluation is necessary, parents will be notified. Alternatives to be considered include enrolling the child in the Preschool Oral Communications Center, a nursery school, referring to an outside agency in cases of emotional disorder, working with a social worker, making appointments with medical doctors for hearing or vision problems. If this early round-up proves successful, the committee is hopeful that it will eventually replace the Kindergarten Round-Up, thus giving all concerned with the development of children an extra year to help overcome problems prior to the first year in the school setting. Working on this early screening project are Frances Buffham, director, and James Westphal, advisor, with committee members: Bernice Fletcher, consultant; John Ledvina, social worker, Dorothy Rehbein, school nurse; Sue Webb, school psychologist; Phil Roe, social worker; Don Boucher, school psychologist; Nancy Phernetton, speech and language therapist; Tom Loveall, principal, McKinley Elementary School; Dick Lee, teacher; Sue Taylor, teacher, and Grace School, oral communications.

Prior to the gathering of children and parents for the round-up, a meeting was called to inform parents about the pilot project of early identification.

An outgrowth of this meeting were suggestions for parents seeking to help their children develop fine and gross motor skills and basic concepts.

Suggested for fine and gross motor skills was play with large and small balls, tumbling, running, jumping, skipping, hopping, balance activities, painting with poster paints on large paper, finger painting and scribbling or coloring with crayons on large paper.

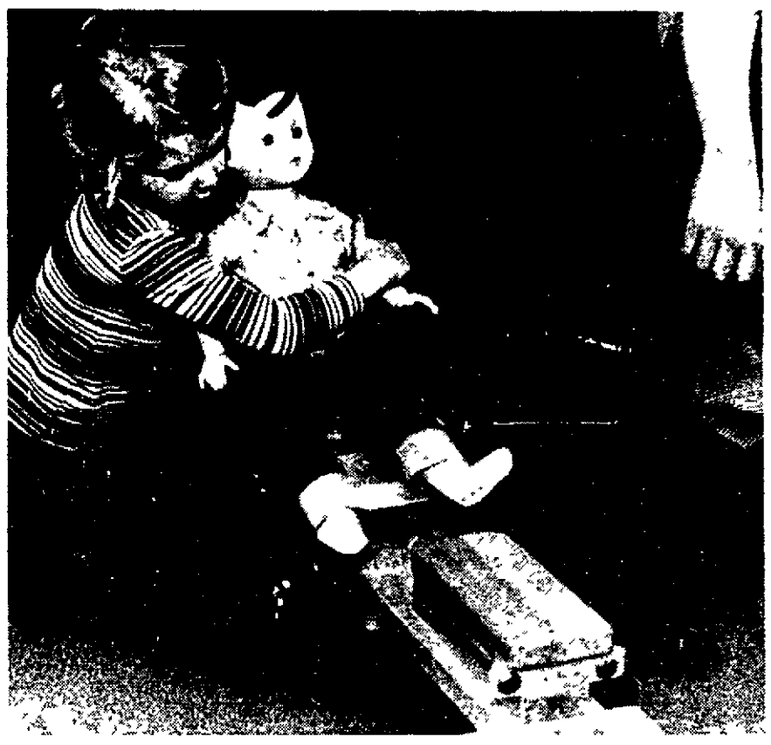

Perhaps most important of all was the suggestion that instead of allowing children to constantly watch television, parents encourage them to play outside or on equipment in a park.

To develop basic concepts children should be helped to recognize and name colors (using every experience in daily living, ie. blue socks, red shoes), counting objects to learn numbers, learning to understand oral directions and follow them. Stories should be read to children and they should be encouraged to retell them. They should be helped to learn nursery rhymes and to be able to discuss pictures. Reading to children is an excellent learning experience for them and one most parents find enjoyable.

Opportunities should be provided so children can learn to play with others in their peer groups.

June auction, picnic scheduled by church

KAUKAUNA—Members of the St. Mary Parish auction committee are urging parishioners and friends to contribute one "substantial" article along with regular auction items from their homes, cottages, farms or businesses.

The group is planning its second annual auction and picnic for June 2 and 3 at LaFollette Park with Mr. and Mrs. Marv Hietpas, 115 W. 8th St., co-chairman.

District chairmen are contacting parishioners and business places to put their donations on the list. Collection will come later. They are asked to bring items to the park early the morning of the sale. If this is not convenient, to 115 W. 8th St., before the auction. Large items will be picked up by truck Friday or Saturday, June 1 and 2. Information may be obtained by contacting the Hietpas residence.

A 40 by 120-foot tent is being prepared for inclement weather as well as smaller ones. The public is invited.

Three-day cooling off period lets customer cancel contract

You buy a set of encyclopedias from a door-to-door salesman and the next day decide that it was a bad deal. It used to be that you didn't have an out. But now, under the Wisconsin Consumer Act, you'll have three days in which to cancel the contract, says Margaret Nelson, consumer economics specialist at the University of Wisconsin-Extension.

This chance to back out is referred to as a "three day cooling off period." In cases where it applies, the merchant must give you two copies of separate notice saying "customer's right to cancel." The notice describes how you go about cancelling the contract. If the sale was in a language other than English, the cancellation notice must be in that language as well as in English.

The three day cancellation provision applies to most transactions taking place away from an established place of business. For example, door-to-door, telephone and direct mail sales are covered. The transaction must involve credit or a cash purchase over $25.

You'll have three business days in which to cancel the contract Nelson says. So, if you sign the agreement on Friday, you would have until midnight the following Wednesday to change your mind. If you should decide to cancel, you are entitled to get back any down payment you made within 10 days. Within 20 days of cancellation, the merchant must return any property he received from you, such as a tradein.

To qualify, the sales must be directed at a particular person. For this reason, sales of goods at auctions or catalog sales unaccompanied by any other solicitation are exempt. Also not included are the sale, lease or listing for sale of real property, the sale or lease of goods for agricultural purposes or loans made to finance goods sold at an auction or for agricultural purposes.

The right to cancel is waived if the merchant, in good faith, makes a substantial start at performing contract terms before you give notice to cancel. That is, if you decide that waiting three days for goods or services would endanger someone's health or safety or harm your property, you would give the merchant a signed statement to this effect stated Nelson.

For example, you might want to have a new furnace installed immediately. Then the three day, cooling off period doesn't apply. Also, if the products involved can no longer be returned in reasonably good condition, the right to cancel is lost.

Once you decide to cancel the contract, you must return to the merchant any goods you received under the contract or, in some cases, their approximate value. If the merchant doesn't take these goods within 20 days following the contract cancellation, you own the goods without having to pay. Any services performed by the merchant prior to cancellation don't have to be paid for.

When you inform the seller that you want to cancel the contract, it's a good idea to use a certified or registered letter with return requested. This is your proof that the seller did, in fact, receive the cancellation notice.

Of course, the easiest way out of a bad deal is to say "no" in the first place. Don't let yourself get roped into something you don't want. This saves the time and difficulty of cancelling the contract, points out Nelson.

GOP Leaders feel Nixon not decisive

WASHINGTON—President Nixon's belated purge of top White House staffers who betrayed him in the Watergate bugging and cover-up was an "adequate" start, in the word of a long-time associate, but major power centers in his own party are not jumping with new-found joy.

To the contrary, most of the men of real power inside the Republican party—as contrasted to the buttoned down Nixon apparatchiks now purged from the White House—feel that the President was pushed into action against his will. They fear he is still dealing with Watergate by a series of tactical expedients, not by the grand strategy of full disclosure they want.

Moreover, Mr. Nixon is under private but harsh criticism by powerful Republicans for the clumsy way he handled certain aspects of the two most important new assignments he has made: that of Elliot Richardson as Attorney General and William Ruckelshaus as acting director of the Federal Bureau of Investigation.

Political future dimmed

Ruckelshaus, a young political activist with charm, shrewdness and a bright future in national Republican politics, has now been effectively barred from running for the Senate next year or perhaps ever by the President's sudden, ill-considered decision to put him in charge of the FBI. Not wanting the job and feeling not fit for it, Ruckelshaus, nevertheless, was sent there for a few months as "acting" director (forcing him to remove himself from all possibility of re-entering elective politics in Indiana in 1974).

Far worse, the President's quick decision to put "Mr. Clean" at the FBI—a tactical decision that fits into no discernible longterm strategy—has now guaranteed still another period of dangerous uncertainty for the harassed FBI, already clubbed into a semi-coma-tose state during the hapless reign of the unfortunate L. Patrick Gray III.

Far more revealing of the President's inability to deal decisively and come sharply to grips with his worst crisis was his inexplicable refusal to name a special Watergate prosecutor, but to leave that presidential decision up to Richardson.

Given the long and ugly Watergate cover-up by Mr. Nixon's closest aides in the White House, it is understandable that such Republican establishmentarians as Sen. Barry Goldwater, former Defense Secretary Melvin R. Laird, Sen. Hugh Scott of Pennsylvania, the Senate minority leader, and many, many more are insisting that only an outside prosecutor can clear the air of scandal—and clear Mr. Nixon of public suspicion.

It was, in the word of one such Republican, "shocking" that Mr. Nixon hung this decision on Richardson. Again, the President's refusal to meet the demand of a vast, perhaps unanimous, majority in his own party in the matter of a special prosecutor smacked of cute tactics, not the grand strategy required to bring his administration and the country back from the brink.

Finally, what has failed to give Mr. Nixon a fully clean bill of health inside the power structure of his own party is the continued secretiveness of the decision-making which culminated in his commendable Monday morning purge and his "adequate" Monday evening report to the people.

Party's leaders in dark

Thus, Mr. Nixon has not once (as we write this) asked for political advice from the men best equipped to give it to him. Laird, Goldwater, former White House counselor Bryce Harlow, Scott, Rep. Gerald Ford of Michigan, the House Republican leader—all these have been kept in the dark.

Both Ford and Goldwater, tortured by worry that the Watergate disclosures had become a constitutional and psychological crisis spiraling beyond reach, had to beg Laird to take the Republican party's case to the President. But, uninvited, he never did.

Moreover, Mr. Nixon is known to be furious at Goldwater for his April 11 public demand that the President stop pretending Watergate would go away. It is that set of Mr. Nixon's mind which, in spite of the laudable and hard decisions he made on Monday, deeply worries party elders who want his clean-up to succeed, both for their sake as well as his.

For they see as yet no sure signals that the President is finally ready to open up his office and his mind to the outside opinion—most particularly the opinion of politicians in his own party—that might have saved him much of his and the country's present grief.

Private land suggested for public recreation

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau

MADISON — Majority leaders in the two houses of the legislature have asked for a study of involving the private sector of the economy in the enlargement of outdoors recreation opportunities for which the state is presently spending tens of millions of dollars.

Sen. Raymond Johnson of Eau Claire, leader of the Republicans who rule the state senate, and Rep. Anthony Earl of Wausau, floorleader of the ruling Democrats of the assembly, are the authors of the plan to direct the joint Legislative Council to make such an investigation for a later report to the legislature as a whole.

Demands for recreational opportunities in Wisconsin continue to increase, they said, and thus far the efforts to satisfy such demands have resulted in the purchase by the state government of large tracts of land.

One unfavorable result of such actions has been to deprive many local units of government of significant portions of their tax base and reduced their public revenues, they went on.

Johnson said in an interview that he is especially interested in ways to make the huge land areas now embraced in the managed forests created by the state forest crop law more easily available for compatible public use.

Such preserves result from special tax concessions granted by law, he recalled, and although they are technically open to the public, relatively few persons are aware of the fact. He said it may be feasible to encourage their use for public recreation, to the extent that such use would not interfere with the objective of growing a forest crop.

Most of such lands, approaching 2,000,000 acres in total, are owned by counties which get substantial subsidies from the state for their management. Some of the privately held forest crop lands, including those of some power and paper companies, are now available for public use but evidently are not yet widely used, Johnson and Earl said.

Not many happy women at child care hearing

The federal government's limitation of funds and Brown County's refusal to provide day care aid to mothers who don't work were the dominant themes of a five-hour public hearing on day care held in Green Bay Thursday.

The State Advisory Committee on Day Care sponsored the hearing at the State office Building. Transcripts from the session and others held in the state will be analyzed and will serve as the basis for recommendations to the committee. A hearing in Fond du Lac, the only other one in this area, was held last week.

Two Appleton women commented from the floor during the session led by a five-member panel including Lois Mahoney, a member of the State Advisory Committee; Margaret Sloan, a member of the Committee, Joseph Kexel, chairman, and regional director of the Division of Family Services; Charlotte Freedman, Brown County Advisory Committee; Barbara Wunsch, Door County Advisory Committee, and Robert Barry, Voluntary Agency Section.

"Funding of the day-care center is the major problem," said Mrs. Mahoney, who chaired the hearing. "There is a great need for a complete day-care center. Unfortunately, many people are in it for profit and don't provide a sliding schedule for those who can't afford the entire cost."

Mary Ann Brackenridge, Appleton, member of the legislative committee of Wisconsin NOW and Fox Cities Chapter of NOW, spoke to this point when she read from a letter sent to the hearing by Barbara Sczepanski, Appleton. Mrs. Sczepanski, mother of a four and a seven year old, who has her degree in sociology and psychology indicated a pressing need for day care at a reasonable cost.

She explained that her husband is a student at University of Wisconsin Oshkosh who works parttime at Outagamie County Health Center. Sczepanski reported that not only are Appleton centers filled for the coming year, but that if she could get in, she and her husband could not afford the $30 to $38 a week cost.

Speaking for herself, Brackenridge said: "Our society is in a great transition—terms that were previously sexlinked can no longer be so construed. Just as alimony is no longer linked to female, so can day care no longer be understood as a means of a woman's neglecting her family.

She continued, "A myth that is slow to die is the belief that a mother should stay home full time. Such a conviction results in a mother's pressuring her child into performance and creativity that she may then enjoy vicariously. This pattern of behavior has been proved to do damage to the child."

Brackenridge went on, "The question is not how long you spend with your garden, but how does your garden grow?

"There is a growing consensus that day care is an indispensible requirement of that life in which men and women will share in equal partnership the cares and concerns, joys and burdens, responsibility and accountability of a society that recognizes the value of the individual and the indispensability of equal rights."

Lynn M. Schilz spoke not as a parent but as a partner with a husband, both of whom have decided never to have children. Her reasoning to the group was that because the primary responsibility for childrearing rests with the mother, she then would not be able to pursue to the fullest extent, the career for which she has educated herself. Schilz is a researcher for a textile manufacturer in Appleton.

The Appleton woman added that because of the theory that women are responsible for child care and because of the lack of child care facilities she has observed that many women in many situations are prevented from promotion and advancement as men know advancement and better paying careers.

Brackenridge also read a presentation from Elayne Lastofka, Appleton, a member of the AFL-CIO labor board; officer in Concerned Outagamie Mothers, member of Client Agency Delegation Assn. (CADA), and member of NOW and the Human Rights Council.

Lastofka pointed out that fathers as well as mothers need day care; it is needed on a 24-hour basis; industry and educational institutions profit from having day care, and that parttime work should be developed.

Several Green Bay persons testified in opposition to Brown County's policy of not paying day care fees for mothers who are not working. In most other counties, including Outagamie, day care assistance is given for some AFDC mothers who are attending school.

Dr. G. C. Thosteson

Back brace pays off, say girls who know

Some time ago I printed a letter from "Miss C.S.," 12 years old, with scoliosis (curvature of the spine). She was told she should wear a brace 23 hours a day and do exercises.

She didn't want to—she also had diabetes and was about to enter a new school and her father thought it might be too much for her. Couldn't the brace be postponed?

I said don't postpone it. I don't know what she finally did—but I think she, and others with the same problem, ought to see some of the answers from other girls:

—"Im' 13, almost 14. I've worn a Milwaukee brace for one and a half years.

"It's a breeze. It never bothers me, I have loads of friends, both sexes, and am on the student council.

"No one even notices my brace. The trick is to get used to it and get busy. At first everyone asks, "Did you break your back?" "Your neck?" They're just curious, not making fun." —A.S.

—"Two years ago I too found out I had a curved spine. I had to wear a brace 23 hours a day and had exercises to do. I did the exercises for a while but then stopped because I didn't want to do them.

"Right now I would do almost anything to be back in the brace again. I'm flat on my back in a body cast from my neck to my knees recovering from a spinal fusion." —L.W.

—"I started wearing a Milwaukee brace 23 hours a day. That was 11 months ago. Now I only have to sleep in it. Wear your brace faithfully or you'll end up with more problems than you have now."—S.S.

—"I had the same thing happen when I was 12 and just starting junior high. I wore a cast a year and had an operation. My cast was from just below my ears to the middle of my gluteus maximus.

"I felt really embarrassed and would not go to school so I had a tutor. I got so lonely I finally went back to school. I was greetted by everyone which made me feel really good. I'm so glad I had it on in junior high rather than high school."—B.R.

—"I was 15 when I found I had the same thing. I was in a body cast for six months, then in a Milwaukee brace and for almost two years I wore it all the time, not just 23 hours a day. Then I was able to start taking it off, 15 minutes a day, then five more minutes each three days. Finally the day came after I a graduated from high school that I could have it off completely." —M.H.

—"Eight years ago my found I had the same problem, but much worse. I was 12, too. I learned a lot from people. It doesn't matter to people if you have one hand, no eyes or a bit of silver around your body. I had to change schools twice. I have the diplomas to prove it.

"Somebody should wake her up to the fact that her problems are curable and controllable. That's a lot more than some kids ever had."—K.A.L.

Wish I could print all the letters that came . . .

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I would like to know how you feel about acupuncture.—H.M.

I don't feel any way about it. There are some serious efforts in progress to find out the facts about it, and when the facts are available, that will be time enough to form some opinions.

Note to "Anita:" Lupus and "excess serum lipid" are not the same. They are completely different conditions.

Emphysema can be controlled. To learn how to live with this serious lung disease, write to Thosteson in care of The Post-Crescent, requesting a copy of the booklet, "How to Control Emphysema." Enclose a long, self addressed (use ZIP code), stamped envelope and 20 cents in coin to cover cost of printing and handling.

Thosteson welcomes all reader mail, but regrets that, due to the volume received daily, he is unable to answer individual letters. Readers' questions are incorporated in his column whenever possible.

THRIFTY NIFTY By Helen Robertson

Ironing board covers need laundering

Cotton ironing board covers are popular and when treated with silicone or Teflon are smoother and more scorch and water-resistant. Certain synthetic fabrics have been specially developed to withstand temperatures up to 600 degrees. But no matter what type of ironing board cover you buy, keep it clean. Some may be wiped clean, others machine laundered, so check manufacturer's instructions. It is pointless to iron clean clothes on a dirty surface.

Keep broom clean

To wash a broom, dip it up and down in a bucket of sudsy water until it looks clean. Rinse it the same way or under running water. Then just shake off the dripping water and hang it, head down, until it dries.

Sheinwold on bridge

Play trumps safe to assure contract

In a familiar psychology test, students are asked to describe in words an eight-ounce glass that contains four ounces of liquid. The optimists say the glass is half full; the pessimists say it is half empty. In the same way, bridge players sort themselves out as either optimists or pessimists when a high trump drops.

Opening lead — ♣ K

The scene was a match between England and Wales, not long ago. At both tables the final contract and opening lead were the same.

The English declarer took the first trick with the ace of clubs and promptly led out the ace of hearts. When West dropped the jack of hearts, our English friend continued with the king of hearts, hoping to capture the queen of hearts too.

This optimistic play sealed South's doom. East was now sure to win two trump tricks, just enough to defeat the contract.

The Welsh declarer observed the same facts but took a pessimistic view. After the first two tricks, he worried about the trump situation. Instead of leading out the king of hearts, he led a low trump. Dummy's ten lost to East's queen.

East returned a club and West took two tricks in that suit. South ruffed the next club and got to dummy with a diamond to return a trump. South had the K-8 over East's 9-7, so he was able to draw the trumps without further loss. He then had enough top cards to take the rest of the tricks.

The first declarer's optimistic play would have been justified if his contract had been five hearts since then he would need good luck with the trumps to make his rather foolish contract. Since the contract was only four hearts, the second declarer was right. He could afford to lose one trump trick but was right in not risking the loss of two trumps.

Daily Question

Partner opens with one heart, and the next player passes. You hold: S- Q 10 6 3 H- J D- 8 7 5 3 C- K Q J 9. What do you say?

Answer: Bid one spade. Your suit is not very strong but it is quite strong enough for a response at the level of one.

Ann Landers

Have him wear socks to bed

Dear Ann Landers: So you think you have had every problem under the sun? I'll bet you will be surprised to find a brand new one today.

My husband has long toenails. They are very sharp and I have awakened with scratched ankles more often than I care to remember.

Last night he really stabbed me. I actually yelled. It was 3 a.m. The dog began to bark. I told him I had had it with his toenails and that I am buying twin beds. He promised to trim his toenails but he has done this before and they grow like crazy.

Please, Ann, give me some advice.—Love Him But He's Dangerous

Dear Love. Tell King Kong to sleep with his socks on. Simple, wasn't it?

Dear Ann Landers: Recently I read something in the paper that disgusted and shocked me. I am appalled by the selfishness of people, their lack of consideration for elderly friends, neighbors and relatives. This week I read where two very old women (one in Ohio, the other in Illinois) were found dead in their homes, frozen. They had died of starvation and exposure. No one ever thought to look in on these people. When their bodies were discovered by neighbors, they had been dead two months.

Is it asking too much to phone an elderly aunt or great-grandmother or cousin, or even a friend once or twice a week to see if they are sick and need something? And what a treat it would be for these lovely folks if someone came by and took them for a ride, or out for a meal. I do hope that every person who reads this will think of someone who has been forgotten for a long while. Give him or her a call. It would be a wonderful surprise.—I Loved My Parents

Dear I.L.: Yes, it would—and I can promise you that your letter will send many people to the telephone today. Thanks for writing.

Dear Ann Landers: I work in a small office and my boss smokes constantly. I've seen him go from a pipe to a cigar to a cigaret within one hour. I have a heart condition and sometimes I actually gasp for breath.

My doctor gave me an article from the Journal of the American Medical Association and suggested I hand it to my boss. I don't have the nerve, but I know my boss reads your column every day. Will you give me a hand? Here's what the article said:

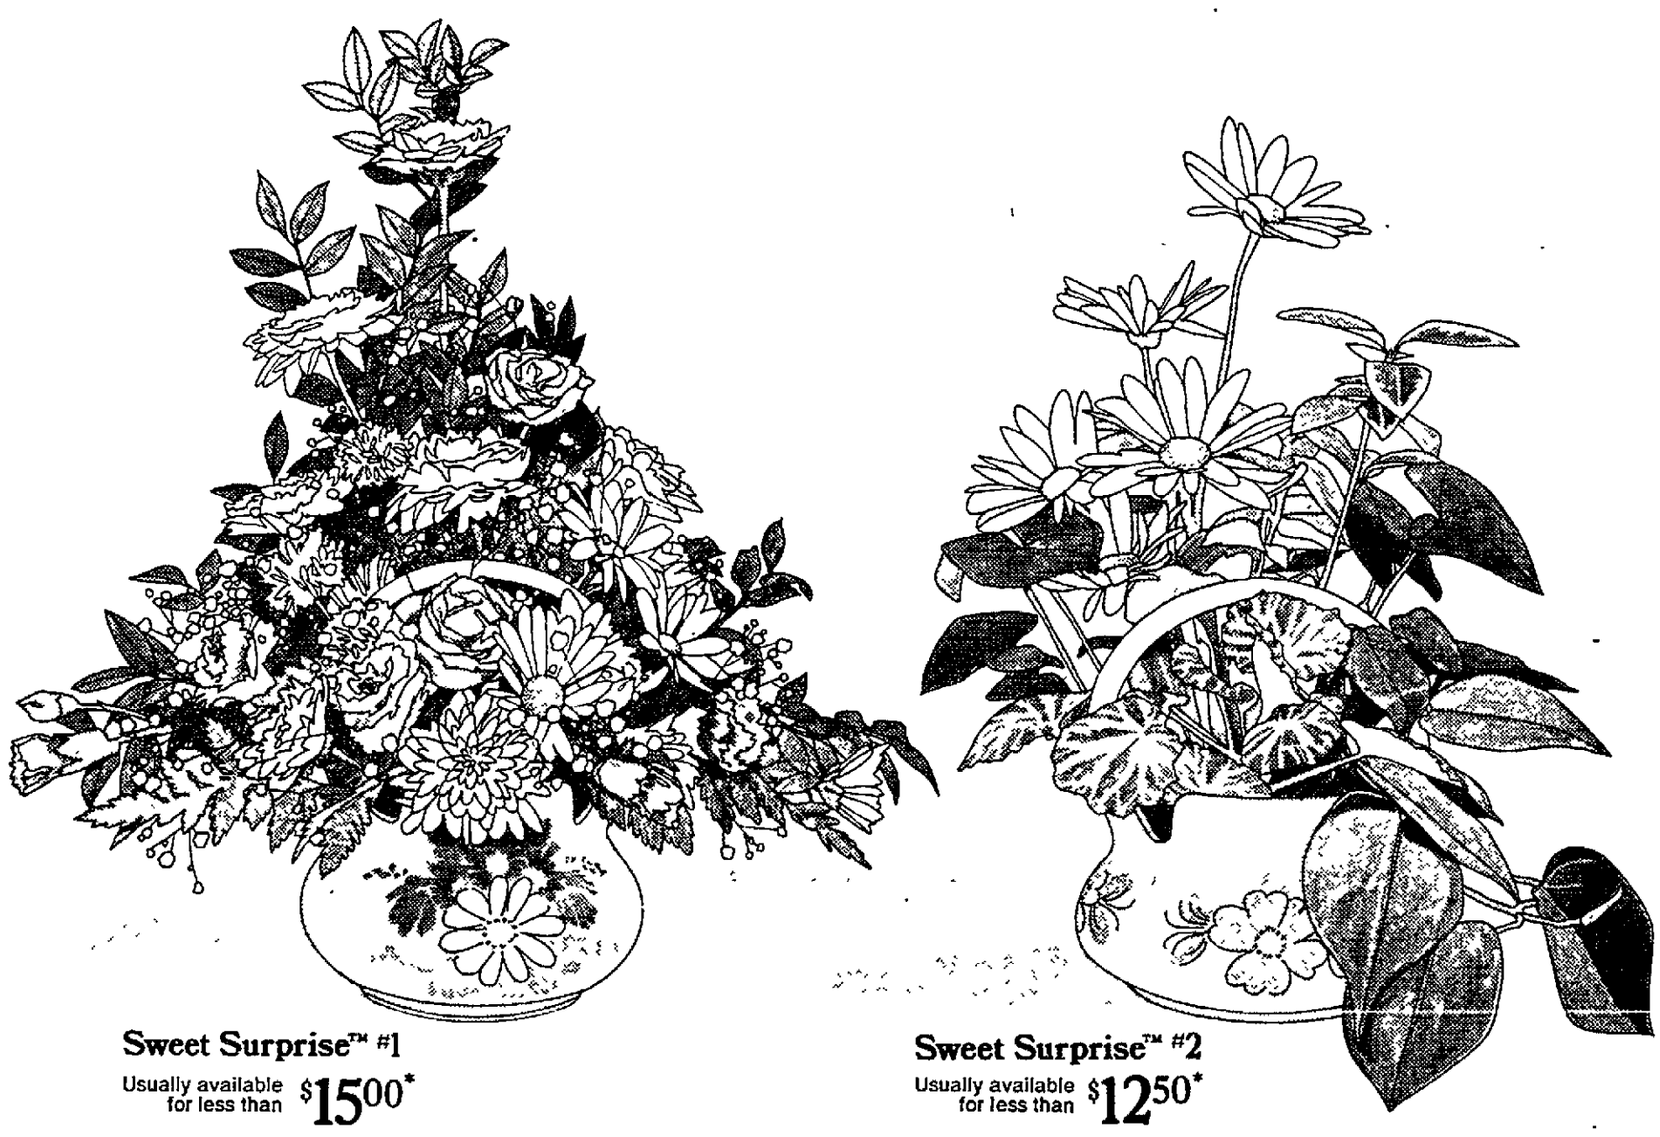

"Dr. Donald A. Dukelow of the AMA's Department of Education was asked if there is evidence to support recent claims that a non-smoker with all-day exposure to a smoke-filled room inhales as much smoke as though he himself had smoked a pack of cigarets. Dr. Dukelow said, 'Positively.' He went on to cite several studies and reported that cigaret smoking in a closed room soon makes the concentration of nicotine and dust particles so high that the non-smoker inhales as much harmful tobacco by-products as one who has smoked several cigarets."

Another study showed that smokers' children are ill more frequently than non-smokers' children—usually with respiratory ailments. This last point just might get to smokers who don't care about themselves but do care about their kids. Thanks, Ann. —Cumberland, Maryland

Dear Cum: Not a day goes by that I don't get a half dozen letters from children who ask me how to get Mom or Dad (or both) to quit smoking. I hope these children will hand this column to their parents and say, "If you won't quit for yourself, will you please quit for me?"

ZPG award

The Rev. Lawrence Gruman of the First Congregational Church of Madison, a ZPG member and a member of the Wisconsin Clergy Consultation Service on Problem Pregnancies, presents awards to Peteranne Joel and Emily West Thursday at the third annual ZPG awards conference in Madison.

Peteranne Joel, Emily West ZPG 'activist award' winners

MADISON—Two Appleton women were among eight persons honored by the Wisconsin Confederation of Zero Population Growth (ZPG) in an annual awards conference Thursday at the Wisconsin Center on the University of Wisconsin Campus.

Peteranne Joel and Emily West were cited by for their work with the Wisconsin Committee to Legalize Abortion in establishing an abortion referral and counseling service in Appleton.

Their "Activist Awards" were presented by the Rev. Lawrence Gruman, a Madison ZPG member and minister of the First Congregational Church.

Lloyd Barbee, a Democratic assemblyman from Milwaukee, received the group's Humanitarian Award for "his early and consistent dedication to Wisconsin women's right to choose abortion."

Media awards went to Whitney Gould of the Capital Times for an environmental editorial and to Ronald Carbon of a Madison radio station for a series of environmental and population broadcasts.

An "Activist Award" also was given to Christine Correra, Beloit, for her volunteer work in abortion referral and counseling for various agencies and doctors in the Rock County area.

A Family-of-the-Year was named by the Madison chapter of ZPG. Robert and Nancy Staigmiller, Madison, were commended for their "awareness that overpopulation begins at home" and for their adoption of a mixed race child. The Staigmillers have one biological child, one adopted child and vasectomy.

The group's only negative award, a Foot-in-the-Mouth Award, went to Sen. Gordon Roseleip, R-Darlington.

"Senator Roseleip electified a legislative hearing room and gained a measure of national notoriety for himself earlier this year," a ZPG spokeswoman said, "when he lectured proponents at a hearing on a bill to repeal Wisconsin's contraceptive law, telling them: 'Now you want to give contraceptives to poor people. Where are we going to get men for the armed services if we have another conflict? It's a good way to destroy an army.' "

A research associate in chemistry at Lawrence University, Joel holds a master's degree in medical sciences from Radcliffe, and a Ph.D. in biochemistry from Harvard. She was an associate in biology at Massachusetts Institute of Technology and a post doctoral fellow at Harvard Medical School working at Boston Hospital for Women. As an associate at Harvard, she also did research at Beth Israel Hospital.

Her husband, Cliff, is an associate professor at Lawrence. The couple has three children, one of whom is adopted.

West, a native of Boston, is a graduate of Cornell University with a master's degree in education. She is a member of the Unitarian-Universalist Fellowship and of ACLU.

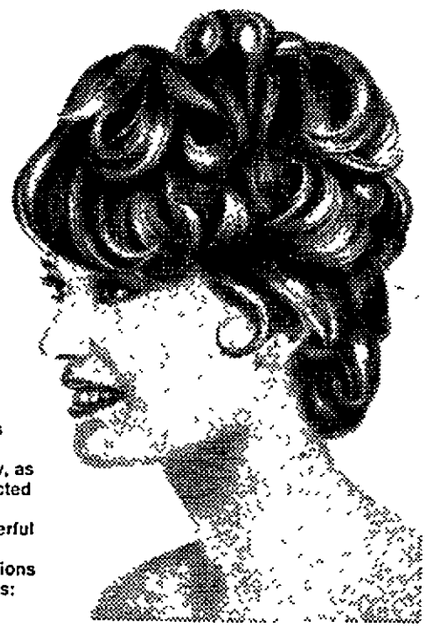

Her husband, Allen, is an associate professor of chemistry at Lawrence University. The couple has three children.

Little honesty goes long way

As a service to consumers, the Department of Agriculture is mulling over a couple of regulations which would tell the public what is contained in hot dogs.

Speaking as a consumer, I don't really want to know.

A little honesty in the kitchen goes a long way with me. I'm the type who never visits a restaurant on garbage day . . . never peeks in the kitchen when the waiter goes through the swinging door and never wears glasses while eating a taco from a street vendor.

When the crackdown of producers of food products first began, I made a list in the kitchen of Column A: Items that were under suspicion of containing harmful additives, and Column B: Food products that were above suspicion.

Column A now snakes to the floor and back to the utility room, while Column B contains three items.

Frankly, all this suspicion and investigating is making a nervous wreck out of people. Diners do not trust anyone anymore. The other night I gave a dinner party and Marge looked up from her plate and said, "What happened to those hamsters your son used to have?"

It wasn't like Marge to be so skeptical. I mean, just because she had never seen an inch and a half drumstick before didn't mean she was being deceived.

"All of us have just got to pull ourselves together," I said. "This is ridiculous. We all know more about our food products than any person who eats three times a day has a right to know. Remember when we used to look for bent cans because they were cheaper? Remember when we used to think peanut butter was vegetable . . . not animal? Remember when we used to let our kids eat snow, as long as it wasn't yellow?" If the government wants to investigate the contents of the American hot dog, I say terrific, but don't tell me what they find. I have to believe in something and, frankly, all my heroic illusions are being shattered. Don't tell me the American flag was made in Japan. Don't tell me the symbolic eagle is high on pot. Don't tell me what is in a hot dog. All these years, I thought I didn't feel well because my baseball team lost.

Safety Council seeks nominees

Women's Conference of the National Safety Council, through its annual Citation Awards Program, publicly recognizes significant safety programs by women's and parents' organizations. The awards program is open to all organizations on local, state, district, regional and national levels which carry out significant safety programs designed to keep people safe on the streets, at home, at play or when traveling.

The national awards program has been established to encourage an understanding and appreciation of a safe life in safer communities, highlight the need for constant vigilance to achieve safety, spotlight the significance of women in accident prevention, provide an opportunity for an organization to assume an important role in the safety movement. It also seeks to stimulate leadership in accident prevention programs, demonstrate methods and report results that will spur other groups to undertake safety programs and to highlight the fact that most accidents are preventable. If hazards cannot be removed, people can be made aware of them through education and their attitudes can be changed through an effective safety program.

Programs to be considered may include one or more of the following: Safety on the streets including automobile driving, pedestrian, bicycles, Defensive Driving Course, national highway standards, alcohol and drugs, school, street lighting, personal safety and self-defense; home safety including falls, poison, fire, electricity, safety for elderly persons, children and the family, and recreation safety including water safety, snowmobiling, sports and camping.

The Citation Awards are noncompetitive and are granted for achievement in accident prevention programs. They are presented publicly to winners during the annual Women's Conference at the National Safety Congress in Chicago each year.

Organizations wishing entry forms may write: Women's Department; National Safety Council, 425 N. Michigan Ave., Chicago, Ill. 60611. Deadline date is July 1.

Steps would expand Huber Law program

BY BILL KNUTSON
Post-Crescent staff writer

The hiring of at least two additional employes in the Outagamie County Sheriff's Department has been recommended to permit expansion of the Huber Law (work release) program in the jail.

County Judge Nick F. Schaefer's ad hoc Jail Rehabilitation Program Committee also recommended that the position of Huber Law officer, now held by Clayton Smith, be upgraded in both salary and rank.

Smith administers the Huber Law program alone and has the same rank and pay as a jailer. Sheriff Calvin L. Spice told the committee today that he has tried for several years to get Smith's pay grade hiked. He also said the Huber Law officer should have at least a sergeant rank.

If the Huber Law program is expanded as envisioned by the Rev. Orville Janssen and the rest of the special study committee, more manpower must be added to the jail staff to provide necessary security supervision. Many of the proposed and current rehabilitation programs will be administered to inmates at night. Smith works days. Spice said Smith now is carrying a peak workload.

Circuit Court Judge Gordon Myse, who recommended hiring additional employes in the Huber Law section of the jail and upgrading the Huber Law officer's position, said the county will save money in the long run through a decreased jail return rate for inmates.

"There is going to have to be some investment by the county if this program is to be successful," Myse said.

He displayed letters from Brown and Winnebago county sheriff departments which showed that they have much smaller Huber Law programs, in terms of inmate population, than Outagamie County but both have more personnel to handle the programs and the Huber Law officers have sergeant and lieutenant ranks.

Spice agreed that a secretary and another jailer probably would be sufficient now for initial expansion of the program.

At County Executive Alvin Woehler's suggestion, the county board's Judiciary and Enforcement Committee, which met with the ad hoc panel and then held its regular session, will consult with Schaefer about the status and projections for the rehabilitative programs, then will meet with Spice about detailed personnel needs.

The committee is expected to make a recommendation to the Personnel Committee in about a week.

Woehler indicated support for the rehabilitation program and the anticipated personnel needs, but he said Spice should be the one to decide how much extra manpower is needed.

Police take part in 'law of the month'

The Appleton Police Department is cooperating with a new traffic "Law of the Month" program, adopted last month by state officials in Madison, Police Chief Earl O. Wolff has announced.

The program, initiated by James O. Peterson of the state Department of Transportation, seeks to combat the increasing state traffic fatality toll by making motorists more aware of traffic regulations.

In a letter to sheriffs and chiefs of police throughout the state, Peterson said, "Not all motorists are aware of all the requirements and responsibilities placed upon them by traffic laws. Those who are not aware certainly cannot comply. Traffic officers can play an important role in educating the motorist in such circumstances by explaining the law or ordinance."

Wolff said he has instructed his officers to comply with the program by being more than normally alert for the particular law to be stressed each month. He said this will not necessarily result in more arrests, but rather is designed to make both the officers and motorists aware of the law.

The "Law of the Month" for May stresses when to legally pass on the right, according to section 346.08 of the Wisconsin Statutes.

It states:

"The operator of a vehicle may overtake and pass another vehicle upon the right only under conditions permitting such movement in safety and only if he can do so without driving off the pavement or main-traveled portion of the roadway, and then only under the following conditions:

—"When the vehicle overtaken is making or about to make a left turn.

—"Upon a street or highway with unobstructed pavement of sufficient width to enable two or more lines of vehicles to proceed at the same time in the direction in which the passing vehicle is proceeding.

—"Upon a one-way street of divided highway with unobstructed pavement of sufficient width to enable two or more lines of vehicles lawfully to proceed in the same direction at the same time."

Conference is slated at IPC

Top officers of member companies of the Institute of Paper Chemistry will be at the institute on Thursday and Friday for the annual executives' conference.

Students help mail get through

The mail must go through — or so a slogan says — and to insure that it does, the Appleton Post Office hires a group of hard-working students to handle mail during some of the office's more hectic hours.

"Fourteen students presently are employed by us under the 'Youth Opportunity Program'," said Post Office officer-in-charge Arlo Callahan. "It gives them an opportunity to make extra money, and helps us get the mail out on time."

The 14 students who are working off-hours at the Post Office are hired under a special federal program established in 1966. Basically, it is for young people who need employment to help finance their education, whether attending high school, college or vocational institutions. They are chosen by the Post Office on the basis of recommendations by the schools they attend, Callahan explains.

The postal official said that the group works at the main Appleton office from about 5 p.m. to 8 p.m. each day to sort mail for delivery to the postal center in Oshkosh.

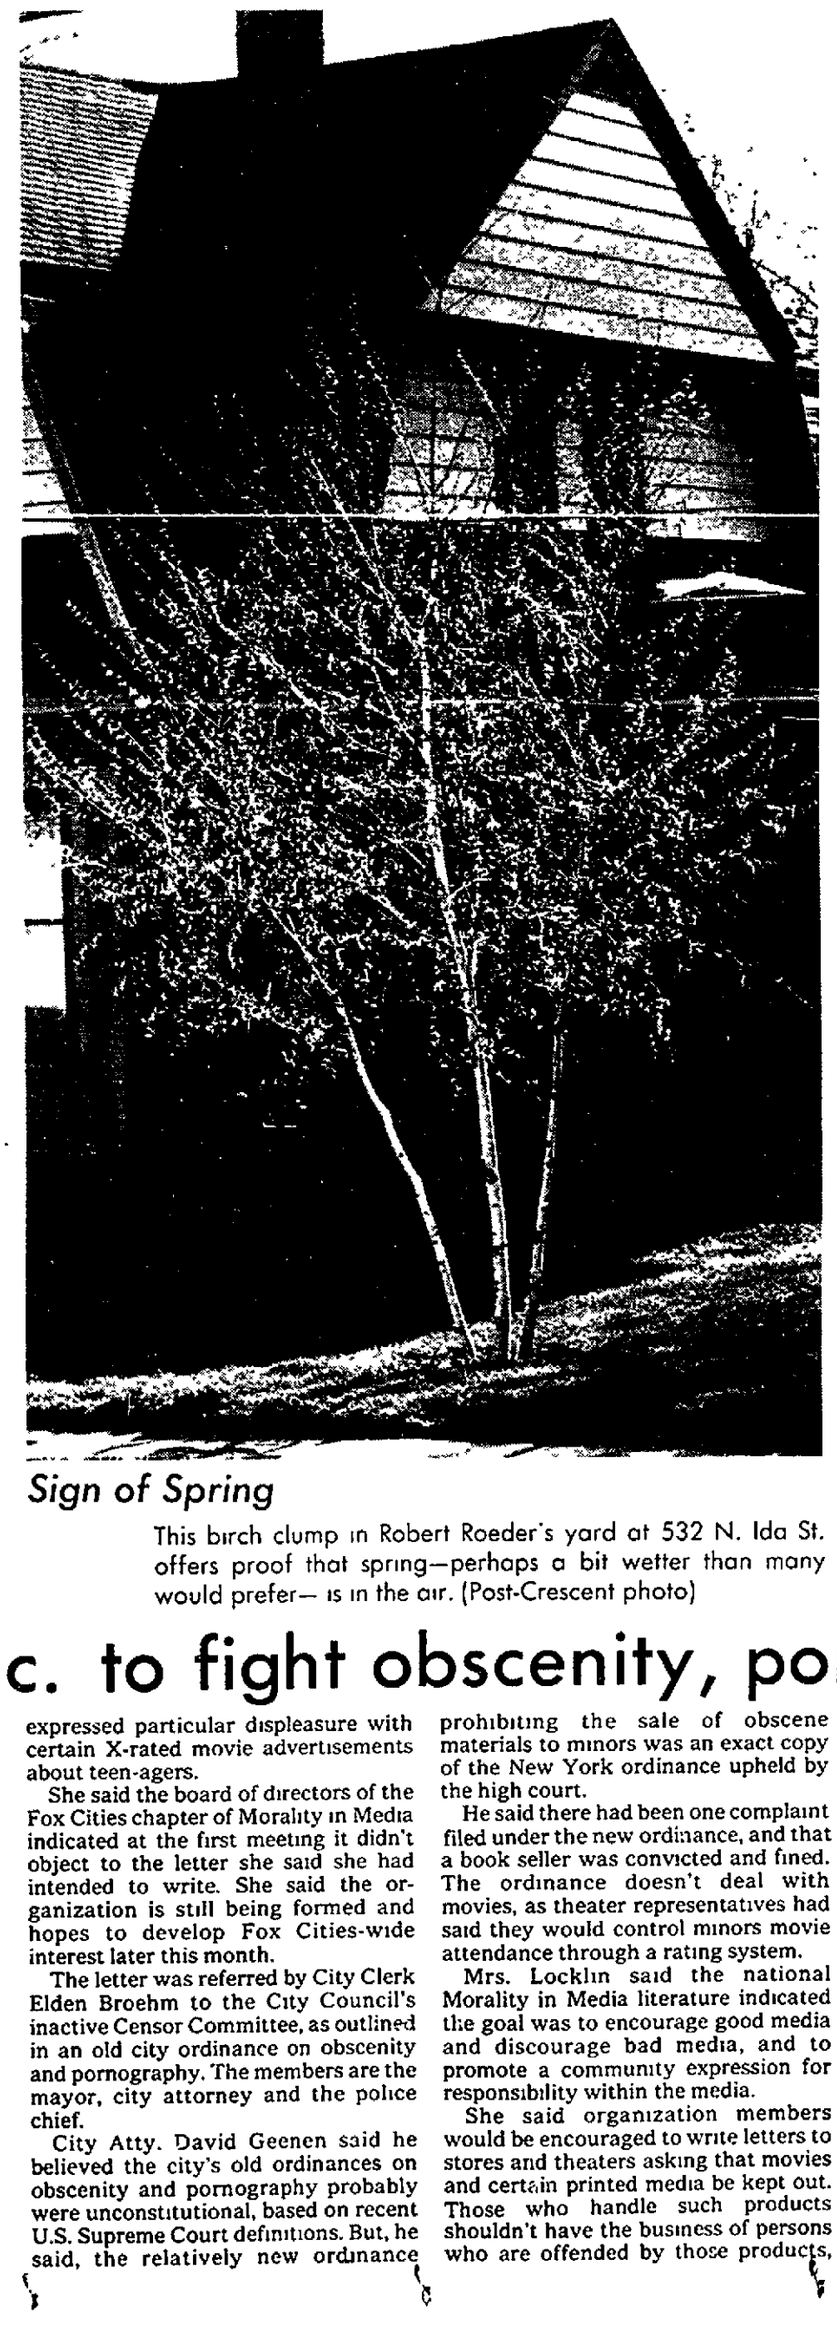

For mail in Appleton, late afternoon generally is a peak period as a result of late-in-the-day deliveries by area businesses and industries. It must be sorted and ready for truck delivery by about 8 p.m. The real rush occurs during these three afterhours. It is particularly difficult to hire full-time personnel for that period, said Callahan. This is where these students come in handy.

Callahan said that those in the opportunity program initially are hired for one year. They are between ages 16 and 22, but often are re-hired after each year of employment if they prove their worth. They are allowed by law to work only 16 hours per week during the school months.

Callahan said that many of the students, though limited by law to the number of work hours during the school year, are able to get full-time jobs with the postal department during summer. This is because of the openings that result when regular employes go on summer vacation, he said.

"For many of these students, it's the first job they've ever held down," said Callahan. "Sometimes it takes a little fatherly advice on our part to keep them going. But for the most part, the schools send us some excellent workers."

Treatment plant jobs promoted

The administrator of the State Division of Environmental Protection has cited anticipated tougher monitoring of wastewater treatment plant performance and urged the City of Appleton to consider adequately preparing its treatment plant operators.

Thomas Frangos, who heads the State Department of Natural Resources' (DNR) major antipollution agency, said the state was offering a comprehensive wastewater treatment plant operator course beginning June 4 in Madison.

"The objective of the course is to provide the most effective all-around operator training at the lowest cost to the utility," he wrote. This offering is intended to aid both the community that needs additional backup certified operators as well as those smaller communities whose plants may be reclassified on the basis of increasingly complex treatment processes. A. Wayne Colbert, wastewater division superintendent at Appleton, said he would have to confer with Robert Miller, public works director, on whether any Appleton operators would be enrolled in the course. He said that money and operator time were two concerns, but he said he believes the training would be valuable. Appleton has two operators with the highest operator rating, including Colbert, but both are near retirement, he said. Also, it has one with the second highest level, two with the third and one with the fourth. Frangos warned "Well qualified operators are becoming more difficult to obtain as many plants seek to fill their needs for backup and additional shift operators." The course would involve two weeks of lecture and workshop instruction in June or July at Madison. It will be divided into two one-week conference courses, with a week of home study between them. The ncreased enforcement of tougher water standards will be the result of the Federal Water Quality Act of 1972, Frangos said.

State accidents claim 4 lives

Deaths of four persons in weekend accidents raised Wisconsin's 1973 traffic death toll to 312 today, compared with 321 on the same date in record 1972.

Charles Jeffries, 25, of Madison died Sunday when his motorcycle crashed near Stoughton.

Robert Moldenhauer, 25, of Osseo died Sunday in a two-car Trempealeau County collision.

Rosemarie Oster, 17, of Menomonee Falls was killed Saturday in a Waukesha County accident.

David C. Guist, 17, of Viroqua was fatally injured Saturday.

Morality Inc. to fight obscenity, pornography

By Arlen Boardman
Post-Crescent staff writer

The co-chairman of a newly forming local chapter of a national organization called Morality in Media Inc., initiated the first of what promises to be a steady campaign of attempts to stop the showing of X-rated movies and the sale of magazines the organization may consider obscene and pornographic.

Mrs. Stuart Locklin, 2105 N. Drew St., sent a letter to the Appleton City Council last week asking that it take action that it can under the law to serve these purposes.

"Please see what you can do to rid our community of X-rated and maybe even 'R' movies that offend — and even eliminating Playboy and Cospmopolitan and other sex-oriented magazines from our local stores," she wrote.

Mrs. Locklin, who said much of the campaign will be directed toward protecting minors from such materials, expressed particular displeasure with certain X-rated movie advertisements about teen-agers.

She said the board of directors of the Fox Cities chapter of Morality in Media indicated at the first meeting it didn't object to the letter she said she had intended to write. She said the organization is still being formed and hopes to develop Fox Cities-wide interest later this month.

The letter was referred by City Clerk Elden Broehm to the City Council's inactive Censor Committee, as outlined in an old city ordinance on obscenity and pornography. The members are the mayor, city attorney and the police chief.

City Atty. David Geenen said he believed the city's old ordinances on obscenity and pornography probably were unconstitutional, based on recent U.S. Supreme Court definitions. But, he said, the relatively new ordinance prohibiting the sale of obscene materials to minors was an exact copy of the New York ordinance upheld by the high court.

He said there had been one complaint filed under the new ordinance, and that a book seller was convicted and fined. The ordinance doesn't deal with movies, as theater representatives had said they would control minors movie attendance through a rating system.

Mrs. Locklin said the national Morality in Media literature indicated the goal was to encourage good media and discourage bad media, and to promote a community expression for responsibility within the media.

She said organization members would be encouraged to write letters to stores and theaters asking that movies and certain printed media be kept out. Those who handle such products shouldn't have the business of persons who are offended by those products, she said.

The organization met initially three weeks ago, and is planning another session this week, she said.

The first meeting when the public will be encouraged to attend will be May 25 when the Rev. Morton Hill, a New York Jesuit priest who was one of two authors of the minority report from the President's Commission on Obscenity and Pornography, will speak. He is the head and founder of the Morality in Media.

Mrs. Locklin said he encouraged the local chapter after she and co-chairman Mrs. George Hrubecky, 537 E. Cecil St., Neenah, wrote to him. Mrs. Locklin said many local organizations would, or have been, contacted to build cooperative support for the Morality in Media program.

The others on the five-member local board are Stuart Locklin, Wilfred Loebig, Jr., and Alyce Luama.

Reporter's source protected

WASHINGTON (AP) —The Supreme Court today let stand a lower court decision protecting a reporter's confidential source in a civil rights suit aimed at discriminatory real estate practices5

The justices rejected without comment an appeal by a group of black plaintiffs of a ruling by the U.S. Circuit Court in Chicago that reporter Alfred Balk could conceal the identity of a real estate operator who admitted using "blockbusting" techniques.

In a decision last year, the circuit judges said they were mindful of the Supreme Court's ruling that journalists enjoy no privilege against testifying before federal grand juries.

"We are of the view that there are circumstances, at the very least in civil cases, in which the public interest in nondisclosure of a journalist's confidential sturces outweighs the public and private interest in compelled testimony," they wrote.

"The case before us is one where the First Amendment protection does not yield," they continued.

The issue arose in a longstanding class action suit by black persons who purchased homes in Chicago during the 1952-1969 period.

They charged that real estate developers played on racial prejudice by inducing "panic selling" among white homeowners to gain property at deflated prices.

The property would be then sold at inflated prices to black purchasers, who were made easy prey by a severe housing shortage brought by segregated residential patterns, the suit continued.

During the litigation, a story by Balk appeared in the nowdefunct Saturday Evening Post with the title "Confessions of a Blockbuster: A Chicago real-estate agent who moves Negro families into all-white blmcks reveals how he reapts enormous profit from racial prejudice."

In a deposition, Balk said the man he identified as "Norris Vitchek" was a real person who had made the statements attributed to him in the article. But he refused to disclose the agent's true identity.

The plaintiffs said identification of "Vitchek" would, by his own admission, establish his full and complete liability for the wrongful injury which he conceededly inflicted" on black home purchasers.

The plaintiffs said the circuit court decision in effect creates "an absolute journalist's privilege in civil cases," but Balk's lawyers argued that no such sweeping interpretation need be applied.In their response, they argued that there is precedent short of broad constitutional provision that allows a witness such as Balk, who is not a party to the suit, to remain silent.

Special prosecutor promised

WASHINGTON (AP) — Elliot L. Richardson promised today he will name a special, independent prosecutor to head the Watergate investigation and said he will ask the Senate to express its confidence in the man.

Richardson said he'll make the appointment once he is confirmed as attorney general. He said he has not yet found the right man to head the probe.

Acknowledging worries over how the Watergate investigation would be pursued, Richardson said, "After much careful thought about how best to respond to these concerns, I have decided that I will, if confirmed, appoint a special prosecutor and give all the independence, authority, and staff support needed to carry out tasks entrusted to him."

With special emphasis, Richardson said the special prosecutor would report only to him as attorney general. This seemed to imply that President Nixon would have no direct hand in the investigation.

Richardson, currently the secretary of defense, was chosen by Nixon last Monday to become the new attorney general and take personal responsibility for the Watergate investigation.

"I would welcome, in addition, an expression by the Senate as a whole of its confidence in him," Richardson said.

There have been numerous calls in the Senate for someone of the caliber of a Supreme Court justice with no ties to the Nixon administration, to personally investigate the Watergate scandal.

"I have taken into account the fact that, because I have held office in this administration from its beginning, my objectivity may be questioned," Richardson told a Pentagon news conference.

Richardson appears before the Judiciary Committee on his nomination as attorney general on Wednesday. Because he has yet to be confirmed by the Senate for that job, Richardson declined to answer questions after reading a three-page statement.

Of the search for a special prosecutor, Richardson said, "It may take some time to find the right person." He made no estimate of how long that might be.

A number of prominent names have been mentioned as likely choices.

One is Lawrence E. Walsh, a deputy attorney general under President Dwight D. Eisenhower. He is a former U.S. District Court judge and a member of a New York law firm.

Another is Judge Irving R. Kaufman, in line to become chief judge of the U.S. Court of Appeals for the 2nd Circuit. Persons close to the judge told the New York Times he had been approached but turned it down.

Kaufman is the judge who in the early 1950s sentenced Julius and Ethel Rosenberg, two convicted atom spies, to death.

Another is Judge J. Edward Lumbard Jr., soon to retire as chief judge of the U.S. Appeals Court 2nd Circuit.

Others mentioned are Herbert J. Stern, U.S. attorney for New Jersey and William T. Coleman, a lawyer in Philadelphia.

Richardson, in an apparent reference to Asst. Atty. Gen. Henry E. Petersen, said his decision to name a special prosecutor should not reflect on the Justice Department, the FBI or any United States attorney. Petersen has been directing the Watergate investigation from within the Justice Department.

Some senators had indicated they might delay acting on Richardson's nomination as attorney general, pending firm word that a special prosecutor would be named.

Israel marks 25th year

JERUSALEM (AP) — More than 400 warplanes roared across the land of the Bible today as Israel celebrated its 25th anniversary with prayers and a three-hour display of the mightiest array of military hardware ever seen at one time in the Middle East.

Some 300,000 cheering spectators jammed the decorated streets of Arab and Jewish Jerusalem for the parade. But the birthday was more festive than warlike despite the biggest armed display in the Middle East since the 1967 War.

Troops and police guarded the parade route against guerrilla sabotage and reserve troops were mobilized for security. But there were no disruptions.

Prayers for peace were held in synagogues before 2,000 troops and more than 160 tanks and artillery guns moved past Premier Golda Meir, government and military leaders and David Ben-Gurion, the 86-year-old founding father of Israel.

Led by five jets spewing blue and white smoke and helicopters towing flags, the Israeli air force provided a roaring umbrella for the festivities. Israeli-built jets spelled out the Hebrew letters for 25 years, 108 American Ykyhawk bombers and 80 Phantoms shrieked behind and 24 French Mirages recalled the spearhead of the 1967 War.

Hundreds more planes — old Stratocruiser and Dakota transports, flimsy Piper Cubs, paratroop carriers, helicopters, sleek super Mysteres and 10 trios of Phantoms with glowing afterburners — flew the length and breadth of Israel, taking the message of warning to the Jewish nation's Arab neighbors from the Red Sea desert to the Lebanese border and the ceasefire line with Syria.

For Israelis, it was a gala salute to 25 years of independence. For Arabs, listening to radio broadcasts or watching on distant television, the arms display was a grim warning to keep the 1970 cease-fire.

Many Israelis ignored the march, protesting that military bravado was unnecessary and the $4.7 million it cost should have been nent on social welfarey

To prevent a boycott by diplomats from countries that do not recognize Jerusalem as the capital, Israel sent no invitations to foreign embassies. Since all the embassies were closed, it was impossible to determine which ambassadors attended privately, if any. The American, British and French ambassadors stayed away, but sent military attaches.

The march was an impressive contrast to Israel's first military parade in 1949, when a major contingent was a team of mules used to carry supplies, and a signal corps showing off the mainstay of its communications system —carrier pigeons.

But the 1973 display of power also was evidence that Israel has failed in 25 years to achieve one of the aims of its founders — peace with its Arab neighbors.

The parade was the object of much criticism, at home as well as abroad. The United Nations asked that it be cancelled because part of its route lay through Arab East Jerusalem, recaptured from Jordan in the 1967 war, and that would anger the Arab nations.

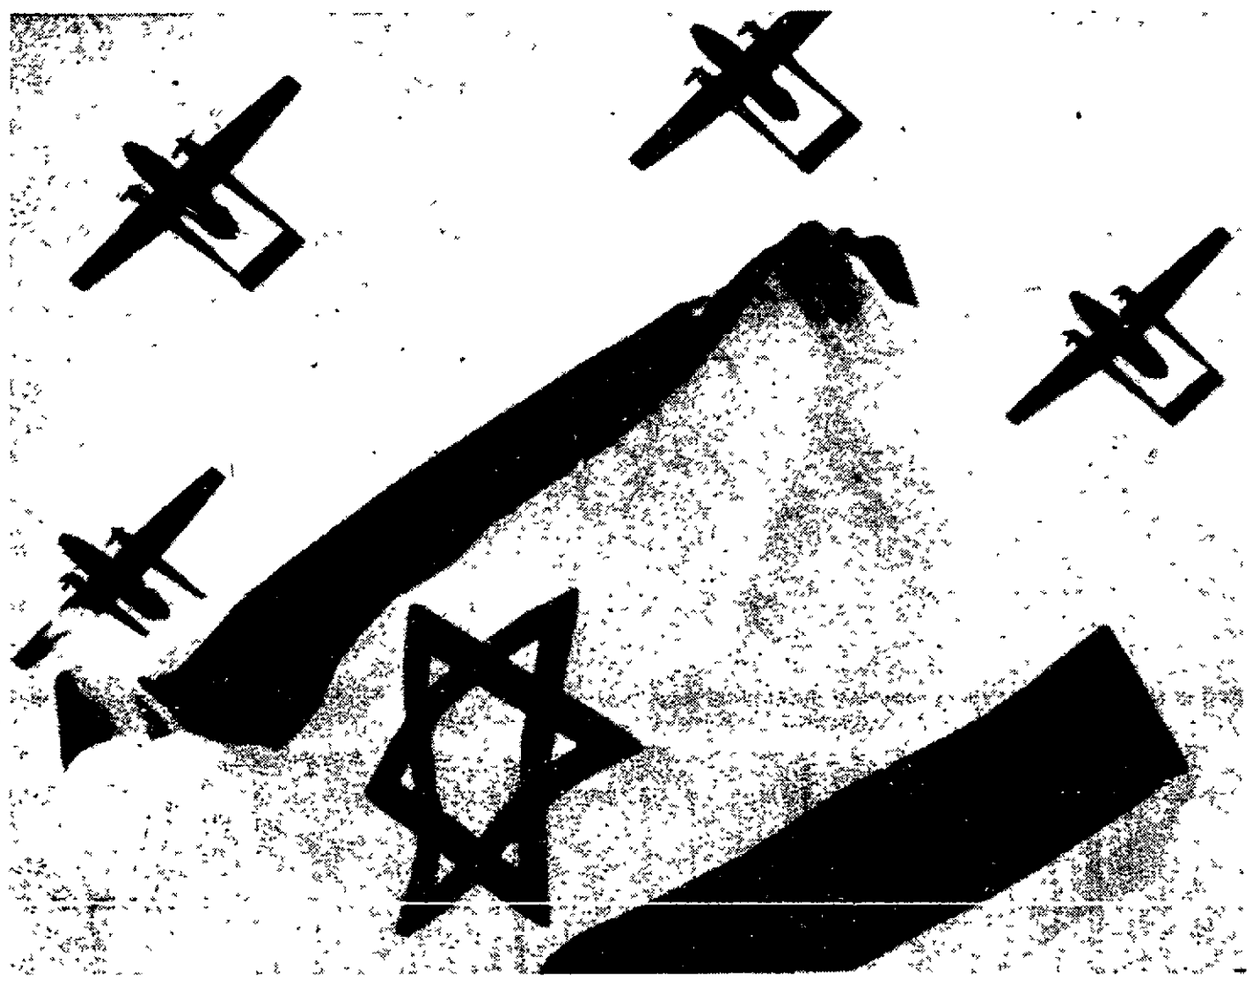

Israel has not had a military parade since 1968, and most observers believe this year's will be the last for a long time.

Independence celebrations began Sunday night after a memorial day for the nation's war dead. The celebrating kept up until dawn.

Visitors from all over the nation camped in the parks of Jerusalem and noisily wandered the streets of Tel Aviv and Haifa.

Fireworks displays throughout the country lit the skies.

In Tel Aviv, bands played from street corner bandstands, and dancing young people jammed blocked off streets.

Birthday celebration

Transport planes fly over the Israeli flag in tight formation as part of an aerial display today during a military parade in Jerusalem celebrating 25 years of statehood for Israel.

Dean ready to implicate Nixon

WASHINGTON (AP) — The nation's two largest weekly news magazines say ousted White House Counsel John W. Dean III is prepared to testify that President Nixon personally congratulated him last September for covering up administration involvement in the Watergate incident.

Time and Newsweek gave slightly different accounts, but both said Nixon's purported remarks came in a meeting among the President, Dean and another top White House aide.

The Florida White House issued today a sweeping statement denying any knowledge on President Nixon's part of the Watergate bugging or its subsequent coverup, in reply to the magazine stories.

Newsweek quoted Dean as saying Nixon was in the Oval Office with Dean and White House chief of staff H.R. "Bob" Haldeman when the President said: "Good job, John. Bob told me what a great job you've been doing."

Time's version said Nixon, Dean and the President's domestic-affairs adviser, John D. Ehrlichman, were present and that Nixon said: "John here tells me you've been doing fine work."

Neither magazine, in announcing the stories would be forthcoming, identified its source.

However, one legal source who has been close to the Watergate case, said the "tidbits" Dean reportedly gave government investigators were used as bait in an effort to win the 34-year-old lawyer immunity from prosecution. Dean has told them he has other evidence, including White House documents, to substantiate his claims, the source said.

The documents presumably are the 43-page volume and eight supporting papers that Dean's lawyer described Friday in U.S. District Court here. Dean gave the keys to a safe-deposit box to Chief Judge John J. Sirica, saying the box contains the classified documents taken from the White House to prevent their being destroyed.

The source said the government has refused to grant Dean immunity in exchange for his testimony.

Another observer said Dean, fired by Nixon a week ago, still may waive his right to the constitutional protection against self-incrimination even if he fails to win immunity.

Truce at Wounded Knee

WOUNDED KNEE, S.D. (AP) — Negotiators for the government and Indian militants are optimistic the 69-day occupation of Wounded Knee will end this week now that a disarmament agreement has been signed.

But spokesmen for the two sides traded warnings about future takeovers and the way the government would react.

Negotiators announced on Sunday the signing of a disarmament pact that calls for weapons to be surrendered and nonresidents to leave the village at 9 a.m. EDT Wednesday.

That is to be followed by implementation of an April 5 agreement that calls for an investigation of civil rights complaints and an audit of Oglala Sioux tribal funds on the Pine Ridge Reservation. The earlier pact was to have ended the occupation of Wounded Knee but never was put into effect because of a dispute over laying down arms.

The confrontation began when American Indian Movement (AIM) forces took over the village Feb. 27 and has resulted in the deaths of two of the Indian occupiers.

AIM lawyer Ramon Roubideaux, a Sioux, said in a statement: "I think the government should realize that the type of governments on reservations is a failure. Something must be done to replace it.

"If not, there will be more Wounded Knees. These oppressed people are not going to live under these repressive governments."

AIM has contended that traditional chiefs and headmen, not the elected officials, should rule reservations.

Richard Hellstern, deputy assistant U.S. attorney general in charge of negotiations for the government, said the government has "learned many things" during the 10-week siege.

"I don't think the pattern of patience, negotiation and renegotiation necessarily would be the same if there were another Wounded Knee," he said. "Persons contemplating another Wounded Knee might anticipate a different action on the part of the government."

Under the agreement, Indians will evacuate their bunkers and turn over their weapons to Community Relations Service personnel of the Justice Department. Legal weapons will be returned to their owners, but all other guns will be seized.

Persons with arrest warrants outstanding against them will be taken to Rapid City for arraignments. Nonresidents of the village will be permitted to arrange transportation from the reservation.

After a search is made by marshals for explosives and other devices in the village, permanent residents will be escorted back home.

Roubideaux said Dennis Banks and Carter Camp, AIM leaders in the village, did not sign the agreement. He said, however, that Banks told him in a letter AIM would honor the disarmament.

"AIM's job is done here," the letter said.

Hellstern and Roubideaux discounted reports that possibly 20 to 30 diehards would not leave the village or observe the disarmament.

AIM spiritual adviser Leonard Crow Dog, Frank Fools Crow and nine other traditional chiefs of the Oglala Sioux signed the agreement for the occupation force.

Oglala Sioux Tribal Chairman Richard Wilson, who says the chiefs and headmen have no legal standing, refused to discuss the agreement.

Interior Department Solicitor Kent Frizzell, who signed the pact with Hellstern and U.S. Marshal Service Director Wayne Colburn, said a meeting between five or more White House representatives and Sioux headmen and chiefs would be held the third week in May on the reservation.

Demands added for U.S. consul

GUADALAJARA, Mexico (AP) — The kidnapers of U.S. Consul-General Terrance G. Leonhardy were reported making more demands today following the transfer to Cuba of 30 prisoners whose freedom had been demanded in exchange for the American diplomat.

"The situation has become extremely complicated. There are new demands," said Gov. Alberto Orozco Romero of Jalisco state Sunday. "We just have to wait now. It could be hours or days...."

He did not say what the demands were.

Shortly before, the governor received a note from Leonhardy saying he was being treated well and his kidnapers promised to release him "at the proper moment."

Leonhardy's wife, at home with the couple's two young daughters, received a telephone call from the kidnapers Sunday afternoon saying new instructions would be phoned later. The second call had not come by midnight.

Officials of the state and federal governments and of the U.S. Embassy in Mexico City waited with Mrs. Leonhardy. A special telephone line was installed at the house, apparently to keep the government in Mexico City in close touch.

Outside the house, nearly 100 newsmen, photographers, neighbors and onlookers waited through the night.

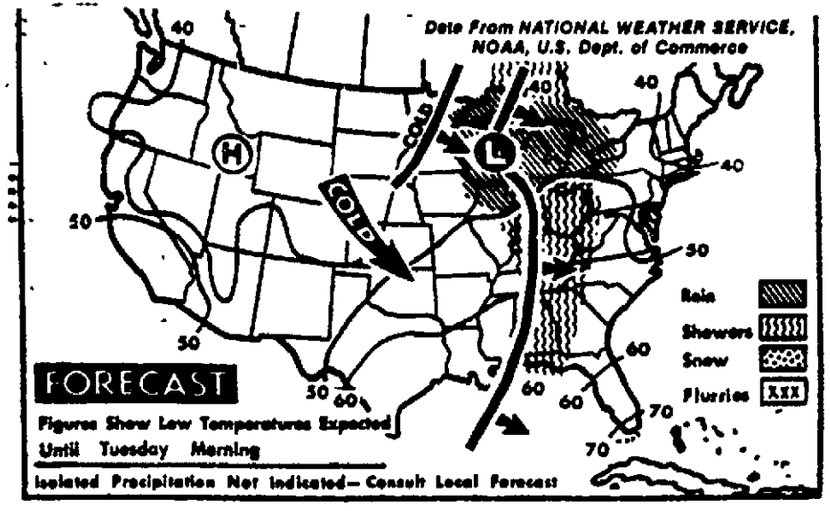

Thirty persons were released from jails in six Mexican states Sunday afternoon and flown to Havana in a Mexican air force plane, meeting the ransom demand of the guerrilla group that seized the 58-year-old consul-general Friday evening as he drove home alone.

Police seek 3 in assault of Appleton woman

Appleton police are continuing their investigation into a reported assault and theft attempt at the north side residence of a 36-year-old Appleton woman late Sunday.

Police gave these details of the incident:

Three young men came to the house about 11:30 p.m. and told the woman they were friends of her son and came to see him.

After she let them inside, one man threw her against a table and davenport before another man carried her into the bedroom, threw her on the bed and attempted to molest her.

After she screamed, he left the room, but apparently the three did not immediately leave the house. She said they smashed a living room lamp, took a sleeping bag, portable radio and electric clock, in addition to $20 from a billfold. The men left in an older model car and the woman said she did not know any of them.

One of them was described as 6 feet tall, 23 years old, with long black hair, beard and mustache, and wearing a light-colored shirt with a medallion on a chain. The second was described as 5 feet, 10 inches, about 20, with a bandaged finger and long, reddish hair. He was wearing brown trousers and a pink shirt.

The third was about 19 with dark hair, black pants and an open black shirt. He had a scar on his chest.

No estimate was given for the missing items.

Farewell to movie apes

By BOB THOMAS

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Arthur P. Jacobs, a man who has made millions with talking apes, is saying farewell to the creatures with a mixture of relief and regret.

Relief, because his five "Planet of the Apes" movies have been complex productions requiring more ingenuity with each one. Regret, because the films have been the producer's biggest successes.

"Naturally, I'm fond of the apes," said Jacobs, 51, "but it has become harder to find new plots that will work. Besides, I have other films I want to make. I don't want to keep turning out apes pictures like Charlie Chans or Tarzans.

"In both those cases, the first five or so of the series were excellent. Then, as the series fell into other hands, they became routine and not so good. I'd rather quit while we're ahead."

The producer has been finishing up "The Battle for the Planets of the Apes," which will be in the theaters this summer. That doesn't mean that doesn't mean the end of the "apes." They'll be re-released in theaters for years to come. And Jacobs has given 20th Century-Fox rights to develop a television series.

Jacobs, who was press agent for Marilyn Monroe, Gregory Peck and other stars before turning producer, reflected on the curious history of the "apes":

"It started in Paris in 1963. Literary agents asked me what I was looking for, and I said 'I wish King Kong hadn't been made so I could make it.'"

One of the agents told him of a new book by Pierre Boulle, who wrote "Bridge over the River Kwai." It was the story of a futuristic planet occupied by intelligent apes. "But unfortunately it can't be filmed," the agent added. "How can you make talking apes believable?"

Jacobs was convinced that he could. But it took him three years to convince a movie company.

The producer first submitted a translation of the novel. All the major companies rejected it as "insane." Jacobs hired five sketch artists to visualize the film. Another round of turndowns.

"Then I figured I needed a top director to sell the package," said Jacobs. "Blake Edwards took it to J.L. Warner, and they were both crazy about it. But then they got into a fight, and when Warner saw the high budget he said, 'Forget about the apes.'"

Next, the producer decided he needed a star to sell the package. He sent a script to Marlon Brando, who said he didn't understand it. Charlton Heston did.

Another round of submissions. Same result.

Richard Zanuck, then production boss at 20th Century-Fox, gave his reason for declining the project: "Nobody will believe Charlton Heston talking to an ape."

Jacobs had Franklin Schaffner direct a 10-minute scene of Heston talking to Edward G. Robinson in ape makeup. Zanuck was sold. The film was made for $5.8 million — without Robinson. The makeup gave him claustrophobia, and he withdrew from the cast.

"Planet of the Apes" was a big hit, earning $26 million. "Beneath the Planet ..." cost $4.6 u illion and made $16.5 million. "Escape from ..." cost only $2 million because it was filmed in Los Angeles with only three apes. It earned $9½ million.

"Conquest of ..." and "Battle for .. ." was made for about $1.8 apiece, and each is expected to bring in between $9 and $10 million.

Why have the "apes" been so popular? Jacobs' opinion:

"Because they are adventure-fantasy. And because they can be viewed on another level as social satire."

Leaving apes

Arthur P. Jacobs has made millions as producer of five "Planet of the Apes" movies in which actors in elaborate costumes and makeup play ape roles. But now he's bidding them farewell. 4,343 watch Foxes lose

BY JOHN L. PAUSTIAN
Post-Crescent sports editor

There's no truth to the rumor that Goodland Field may be . declared a disaster area . . . but the Appleton Foxes' fortunes show no signs of improving.

Wisconsin Rapids whipped Appleton, 6-2, Sunday afternoon to extend the Foxes' club-record losing streak to 11 games.

As they began the third week of the Midwest League season, the Foxes used the quantitative approach in trying to bag their first victory. Appleton used 19 players on the field and had the vociferous support of 4,343 "Paper Day" boosters in the stands. But the Twins' quality — both in pitching and hitting — carried the day for the visitors.

Kevin Cooney and Terry Ryan combined for a 6-hitter to outpitch five Foxes moundsmen. Wisconsin Rapids led from the moment Randy Bass delivered a run-scoring single in the first inning with the first of his three hits. Joe Honce also collected three of the Twins' 11 safeties.

Rick Carrow, new third baseman, was the only Appleton player to crack more than one hit. He had a pair of singles.

At 7:30 p.m. today, the Foxes meet Quad Cities in the opener of a 2-game Goodland Field series.

Starter and loser Woody Eppinette pitched three scoreless frames after allowing a Twins run in the first. But, in the fifth, the visitors put a 3-spot on the board. Frank Capiello hit a 1-out single, and Honce walked. Kurt Best relieved Eppinette, and he was greeted by Chuck Dyson's run-scoring single. Bass walked to fill the bases. Former Fox Moe Hill, now the Twins' elder statesman, whacked a 2-run double to left center. Ed Holly replaced Best and retired the final two batters.

The Foxes chased Cooney with a brief flurry in the eighth. Carrow rapped a 1-out single to left. Pinch-batter Gary Whaley walked, but he was forced at second by pinch-hitter Postell Johnson. Nyls Nyman slapped an RBI single to right. Ryan took over for Cooney and prevented further trouble.

Wisconsin Rapids added two insurance runs in the ninth, on Dyson's sacrifice fly and Bass' double to left.

The Foxes came up with the final run in their half of the ninth. Ron Slingerman, a pinch-hitter, singled oo center, and John Varga socked a double to left. The run scored on George Enright's

Reed, Monroe at best as Knicks take over

NEW YORK (AP) — Willis Reed and Earl Monroe are happy—and Jerry West is hurting.

With Reed playing "my most important game," Monroe proving he's king of the playgrounds and West not having a healthy leg to stand on in the fourth quarter, the New York Knicks beat Los Angeles 87-83 Sunday afternoon to take a 2-1 lead over the Lakers in their National Basketball Association championship series.

"I don't know if it was my best game since the injury back in 1970, but it certainly was my most important one," said Reed, New York's solid man in the middle who scored 22 points and grabbed 10 rebounds against Los Angeles' Wilt Chamberlain.

"Sure I'm happy," he said, smiling. "This was a good one to win, because it keeps us in the driver's seat. Now there are just two games to go."

The Madison Square Garden crowd of 19,694—including the touring Russian basketball squad—and a national television audience saw a rather sloppy game in which the Knicks were outscored 15-2 in seven minutes of the second period, came back to trail just 47-44 at the half, moved in front with seven unanswered points in the third period and stayed one stride ahead of the defending champion Lakers throughout the fourth quarter.

"It was a strange game," said West, the Lakers' superstar who sat out the entire fourth quarter with pulled hamstring muscles in both his legs. "There was no pattern to it, no flow. It was like a playground game."

And a playground game means a Monroe kind of game.

"I enjoyed it today," said the Pearl, who scored 21 points and came off the bench in the middle of the second period to put an end to the Lakers' 15-2 spurt. "Our offense was just stagnating. I asserted myself at the proper time."

Monroe scored six of his points in the third quarter and nine in the fourth, including an off-balance one-hander that gave the Knicks an 85-79 lead with 1:50 to go. Reserve Keith Erickson hit two baskets to bring LA to 85-83 in the final minute, but missed a baseline shot with 22 seconds left that would have tied it. Reed grabbed the rebound, then Walt Frazier sank a pair of free throws with two seconds to go for the final margin.

"Monroe was the only guy not intimidated by Chamberlain," observed West. "He shot well when the Knicks needed the points."

"There's no getting around it, Wilt really polices the lane," conceded Monroe, who like Chamberlain learned his basketball on the playgrounds of Philadelphia.

"But sometimes you've got to challenge him—go in, even if you don't get the layup, just to keep him honest.

"But you have to know what you're doing. I was always a good driver. That's been my game, penetrating.

"We decided we had to make Chamberlain work at both ends of the court, get him as tired as possible."

Bell pitches four-hitter

MILWAUKEE (AP) — The Milwaukee Brewers' shaky bullpen lost its most effective member early this season when Manager Del Crandall made Jerry Bell a starter.

But the way Bell has been pitching—and finishing what he starts—the relief corps has been needed less often.

Bell (4-2) checked the Kansas City Royals and their .270 team batting average on four hits Sunday. The Brewers managed only four themselves off Dick Drago (2-2), but two were home runs—a tiebreaker by Darrell Porter in the eighth inning and one by John Briggs in the fifth—as they broke a threegame losing streak, 3-2.

Bell, in hurling Milwaukee back to within one percentage point of the American League East lead, posted his third complete game in his last four starts. He worked eight innings in the only game he didn't finish in that span, and his major league record as a starter over parts of the last three seasons is 6-0.

Kansas City took a 2-0 lead with an unearned run in the second inning and John Mayberry's seventh homer in the fourth.

But the Brewers scored in their half of the fourth on a double by Tim Johnson—one of five rookies in their revamped lineup—a bunt single by Don Money and a sacrifice fly by Dave May. Briggs' homer tied the score and Porter untied it with a blast high into the centerfield bleachers.

Crandall said he has no plans to return Bell, who has all but one of the staff's four complete games, to the bullpen.

"He doesn't have the arm to take the kind of wear a relief pitcher takes," Crandall said. "But he has been pitching very, very well, and has been very consistent."

"Before I just wanted to help in any way I could to stay up here, but now I think I've found the groove as a starter," the 25-year-old righthander said.

"I think we have a team that will win a lot of ball games, and I just hope I can hold some kind of consistency and be out there every fourth day to be a part of some of those wins," Bell said.

"The difference now is we think we can win before the game starts," he said. "We lost so many games last year because so many guys thought we were beaten before we stepped onto the field. We just got in a rut."

"I think what's happened is so many different guys have been doing the job this year that the rookies don't feel they have to do it all by themselves, but the older guys know the rookies can help out, too."

Porter and Briggs, the Brewers' lates examples of how timely hitting can compensate for a .205 team batting average, both credited their home runs to batting style adjustments.

"I changed my stance a little the day before yesterday at (Coach) Harvey Kuenn's suggestion," Porter said. "I closed up a little more, and that's the way I was hitting at Danville two years ago when I hit 24 home runs."

Briggs said May had pointed out a flaw in his swing during the series at Texas a week earlier.

"Dave said I had been dragging my bottom hand, not pulling the bat through and and letting my top hand do all the work. I was hitting a lot of balls on the end of the bat that way," he said.

Briggs said his home run, which went to the opposite field, came on a low outside fast ball.

Rangers jump on Lolich, win, 7-2

By HERSCHEL NISSENSON
Associated Press Sports Writer

What's wrong with Mickey Lolich?

Nothing, says Billy Martin.

Maybe, says Whitey Herzog.

The left-handed ace of the Detroit Tigers, who pitched 703 innings and won 47 games over the past two seasons, is having his troubles in 1973. Following Sunday's 7-2 loss to the Texas Rangers, in which he was creamed for nine hits—he also walked six—and all seven runs in 5 2-3 innings, Lolich shows a 1-4 record and a 4.15 earned run average.

Elsewhere in the American League, the Chicago White Sox mauled the New York Yankees 11-2, Oakland thumped Cleveland twice 12-0 and 7-3, Baltimore blanked California 5-0, Milwaukee edged Kansas City 3-2 and Minnesota hammered Boston 10-3.

The Rangers hopped on Lolich for three runs in the opening inning on the first of Dave Nelson's four hits, a passed ball, Toby Harrah's single and Alex Johnson's home run. In the sixth, a single by Elliott Maddox and a pair of walks preceded Harrah's three-run triple. Harrah then scored on a single by Johnson.

"This was the first game he hasn't been sharp even when he was losing," said Manager Martin. "The other times he pitched pretty well. I guess he's entitled to a bad one."

The Rangers beat Lolich 2-1 two weeks ago and Manager Herzog said Lolich "threw a lot better against us in Arlington. When he had to reach back and get 'em, he could do it."

The White Sox ran their winning streak to nine games—five of them against the Yankees—as Wilbur Wood became the majors' first seven-game winner and Bill Melton drove in four runs. Wood had a 28-inning scoreless skein snapped in the first inning on Matty Alou's triple and Bobby Murcer's single, but the Sox forged ahead with three in their half, including a two-run single by Melton.

The A's pounded out 18 hits in their opener against Cleveland, including a home run by Joe Rudi, in support of Ken Holtzman's five-hit pitching.

Vida Blue, who had been sidelined more than two weeks with a strained knee ligament, scattered six hits in the nightcap and the A's got homers from Deron Johnson, Gene Tenace and Sal Bando.

Jim Palmer halted Baltimore's five-game losing streak by shackling California on five hits and outpitching Nolan Ryan, who was victimized by Wildness and errors.

Minnesota got home runs from Bob Darwin, Larry Hisle and Joe Lis and routed Boston as Bill Hands scattered 10 hits.

Smith, Lutz cop doubles crown

MONTREAL (AP) — Stan Smith is going to become a little more selfish this week at Dallas.

"Playing singles and playing doubles take different mental approaches," the Pasadena, Calif., native said Sunday after he and Bob Lutz of Tiburon, Calif., had won the $80,000 World Tennis Doubles Championship.

"This week I've concentrated on being a team player. Starting tomorrow it's back to singles in Dallas and I've got to concentrate on playing by myself again," he added.

Smith and Lutz swept Tom Okker of the Netherlands and Chicago's Marty Riessen 6-2, 7-6, 6-0 for the first-place share of $40,000. Riessen and Okker won $16,000.

The champions reached Sunday's final round with a 7-6, 7-6, 4-6, 7-6 victory over veteran Australians Rod Laver and Roy Emerson in Saturday night's semifinal round.

Brawl, ejections mar game

Giants KO Reiser, Cubs

By KEN RAPPOPORT
Associated Press Sports Writer

Pete Reiser used to crash into walls as a player and now he's crashing into people as a coach.

Reiser, famous for getting knocked unconscious while chasing fly balls for the old Brooklyn Dodgers, was one of the casualties Sunday in a fight-filled baseball game at Candlestick Park.

Before the relatively sane second game was won 4-3 by the Giants, Reiser was carried from the field on a stretcher after getting belted in the head during a fourth-inning brawl in the opener.

He wasn't the only one the Cubs lost, however. Third baseman Ron Santo was earlier struck by a pitch and had to make a fast departure for hospital x-rays. In addition, Chicago played the first game after the fourth inning without Manager Whitey Lockman, coach Hank Aguirre and pitcher Milt Pappas. They were ejected along with Giant pitcher Jim Barr, who also had to be taken to the hospital for precautionary x-ravs.

All x-rays eventually proved negative.

In the National League's other games, the Atlanta Braves beat the Philadelphia Phillies 31) the Houston Astros walloped the New York Mets 14-8; the Cincinnati Reds turned back the Montreal Expos 6-1; the San Diego Padres tripped the Pittsburgh Pirates 8-0 and the Los Angeles Dodgers blanked the St. Louis Cardinals 3-0.

Marty Perez and pitcher Gary Gentry, the last two hitters in the Atlanta batting order, drew bases-loaded walks with two out in the eighth inning off reliever Billy Wilson as Atlanta beat Philadelphia.

Bob Watson brought Houston from behind with a three-run homer in the sixth inning and Lee May's grand slam highlighted a seven-run explosion as Houston beat New York. The victory was the eighth straight and 14th in 16 games for the hot Astros.

Roger Nelson scattered eight hits and Johnny Bench and Dave Concepcion hit home runs to lead Cincinnati over Montreal.

Mike Caldwell pitched a twohitter and San Diego went on a 1-6 hit rampage, including homers by John Grubb and Clarence Gaston, in the Padres' victory over Pittsburgh.

Al Downing stopped St. Louis on two hits and Joe Ferguson slammed his sixth homer of the year in Los Angeles' victory.

Peacemaker gets it in neck

Coach Pete Reiser of the Chicago Cubs grimmaces as he was clouted in the neck by teammate Jack Aker as Reiser tried to break up a fight between Aker and Bobby Bonds of the San Francisco Giants. Bonds is to the right wearing a batting helmet. Reiser was sent to the hospital after the brawl and the Giants scored a 11-9 victory in 12 innings. San Francisco also won the second game of the twin bill, 4-3. (AP wirephoto)

Whalers win first WHA crown

BOSTON (AP) — Teddy Green, a veteran hard-hitting defenseman, sat with mixed emotions. He has been the route in many ways.

Green had a satisfied look, but tried to conceal any appearance of strutting Sunday after his New England Whalers defeated the Winnipeg Jets 9-6 for the first World Hockey Association championship.

"Let's say I'm very satisfied," said Green, who came back from a skull fracture and helped the Boston Bruins to the National Hockey League's Stanley Cup in 1970.

"I'm very happy, but I don't know whether this is the most satisfying thing that has ever happened to me," the Whalers' captain said. "Don't forget I was with the Bruins right here in Boston when we won the Stanley Cup three years ago."

Virtually ignored by the Bruins as the team won the Stanley Cup for the second time in three years in 1972, Green jumped to the Whalers and the new WHA last summer.

Green, who tactfully dodges criticizing the Bruins, played a major role on defense as the Whalers won the World Cup. However, he evaded with equal tact the challenge of New England President Howard Baldwin for the Stanley Cup, emblematic of world hockey supremacy.

"Don't anyone ask me to play another game;" Green said. "I'm tired. After more than 100 games, I don't have it. I need a rest. I guess, though, if I had to, I could go one more."

Just a year ago, Green ducked writers after the Bruins won the Stanley Cup by defeating the New York Rangers in seven games. Now, he still refuses to knock the Bruins despite what many consider shabby treatment.

"Look, we have a great team, maybe not the best that ever played, but not the worst," he said. "We're the champs in our league. We have a lot of good hockey players in this league, and everybody should recognize it. I was in the NHL with the Bruins when the league had a lot of good players, when there were only six teams. Then came expansion and then more expansion."

With an explosive, but opportunist, attack, the Whalers jumped to a 5-2 first period lead in the fifth game Sunday, although they were out-shot 1711 by the Jets the first 20 minutes.

Larry Pleau, a Greater Boston native who played with the Montreal Canadiens before jumping to the WHA and the Whalers, scored three goals and Tommy Webster, a former Bruins, tallied twice.

Mark Harmon breaks bone

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Spring football training has another week to run and UCLA has already lost its quarterback Mark Harmon with a fractured collarbone. But Coach Pepper Rodgers says he isn't worried.

"Doctors say the injury will heal," Rodgers said Sunday.

"We think he's had a great spring and it won't hurt his play one bit by next year."

The coach added, "We're still in spring training and we won't be playing anybody until next fall."

Harmon, who guided the potent Bruin Wishbone offense to an 8-3 record last season, piled into a batch of defensive players at the end of a scrimmage run Saturday and fell on his left shoulder, breaking the collarbone.

The son of former Heisman Trophy winner and Michigan All-American Tom Harmon had directed his team during almost all of a two-hour workout before the injury.

World shot put record broken

SAN JOSE, Calif. (AP) — Al Feuerbach, the 25-year-old U.S. Olympian, brok the world shot put record Saturday with a toss of 71 feet, 7 inches and averaged more than 70 feet in a series of six throws at the San Jose Invitional track and field meet.

He bettered the 5-year-old record of 71-5½ set by Texan Randy Matson, the former Olympic champion now competing as a professional.

The new mark came on Feuerbach's second try, after he opened with a toss of 70-10 on the breezy day at San Jose State's Bud Winter Field.

After the 71-7 distance was carefully measured and remeasured to make certain it would be recognized as a world mark, the competition resumed. The 255-pound athlete reached 69-5¾, 69-1, 69-6 and 70-7¼ on his last four efforts.

"I did nothing different today. It was just the result of an eight-week training program," said the new record-holder whose best mark before Saturday was a 70-9 a week earlier at the Mt. San Antonio Relays in Southern California.

Titans sweep twin bill

MENOMONIE — Dan Olson pitched a 4-hitter in the opener and Phill Klismith tossed a 7-hitter in the nightcap as the University of Wisconsin-Oshkosh Titans swept a twinbill from Stout, 12-2 and 4-2, here Saturday.

With the victories, UWO (10-4) moved into second place behind Wisconsin State University Conference leader La Crosse (9-3).

Mike Miller went 5-for-6 in the two games to lead the Titans at the plate.

If Ætna's All-Driver Plan doesn't offer lower rates, broader coverage, or both, why are our phones so busy?

It's great to be popular. But it's not surprising.

After all, Ætna's All-Driver Plan offers some remarkable advantages.

For one thing, Ætna just threw away the book to give you a better deal on car insurance costs and coverage. With All-Driver, Ætna introduces an entirely new, different method of insuring drivers. For the first time, what you pay for your insurance depends entirely on objective facts about you, your car and accident statistics in your area. Not on some individual's personal opinion.

So if your present insurance company is already giving you a break for your safe driving record, chances are we can give you a better break. Even if your record is less than perfect, it could still pay you to look into All-Driver—because we designed it to meet the insurance needs of nearly everyone who has a driver's license.

A big percentage of the drivers who qualify for All-Driver get a break on price. All drivers get a break on coverage. In fact, All-Driver is one of the best insurance policies on the market, offering:

- Broad coverage for a wide variety of hazards.
- Limits of liability up to $1,000,000.
- Liability coverage at no extra charge for mobile home trailers, camper trailers, utility trailers.
- A bumper discount for cars that qualify.
- The best guarantee in the industry on renewal of your policy.

Yes, All-Driver gives you MORE. Call your local Ætna agent today. Or stop in and let him show you how you can qualify for lower rates or broader coverage, or both.

Ætna's All-Driver Plan. It's not your average auto insurance, but then we're not your average insurance company.

NM sewage plant contractor okays extension of time on bid

TWIN CITY News

NEENAH-MENASHA — A spokesman for the general contractor in the sewage treatment plant expansion project, reached by telephone this morning in St. Louis, said his firm would be willing to extend its $16 million bid beyond the 90-day holding period, which expires June 13.

Robert Adams, vice-president of operations for U.S. Enviro-Con, Inc., who would serve as project manager here, said the firm "would be willing to extend its bid for a reasonable period."

Three Wisconsin contractors who hold conditional contracts for the other phases of the project, totaling $2.24 million, declined to speculate on the fate of a formal request for an extension past the deadline. Spokesmen said an extension would hinge on prices quoted anew from suppliers and other factors, including pending union negotiations.

Without approval of extensions from the firms, the most drastic result could be a rebid of the project in whole or part.

The four companies were contacted in light of developments Friday, when four local officials met with Environmental Protection Agency grant officer, Richard Smith, in Chicago.

Local authorities were told that the money — Wisconsin's share of a $1.9 billion sum appropriated by Congress for upgrading and building sewage treatment plants across the country — is still being held up.

Recycle pickups 261 tons

NEENAH — Although, when taken in context of the total the city's recycling effort may not be so significant, during the past year more than 261 tons of paper were kept in the consumer mainstream and did not end up in smoke or packed into a sanitary landfill site.

After a year of pickups, the city has recorded some 522,734 pounds of paper which has been trucked to the Menasha Mill Supply, which, in turn, sells it to the John Strange Paper Co., for paperboard manufacturing.

A year ago when the issue was broached, the city signed a contract with Refuse Service Inc., Appleton, to pick up all paper on a regularly scheduled basis. To encourage participation, the city also passed an ordinance making the paper property of the city when it reached the curb and requiring residents to separate the various kinds of paper.

Refuse Service Inc., owned by Don Riley, in turn worked out an arrangement with Waterwood School, an arm of the Winnebago State Hospital which provided the manpower while Riley provided the truck.

During the past month, the school purchased Riley's truck and is now handling the whole program by itself with the company providing a backup truck in case of breakdown.

The proceeds had been split with 15 per cent going to the city for providing the paper — it took in $401.45 for the year — and the other 85 per cent split down the middle between Riley and Waterwood.

Now, the entire 85 per cent goes to the school, a situation which Ron Guenther, supervising teacher, thinks is much better.

The program is used by Waterwood as a money maker and the income goes toward keeping the truck — which is used for other garden and farm projects — going, plus paying patient's wages.

Although no one is really making a lot of money from it, everyone seems satisfied with the arrangement.

Wayne Bryan, public works director, estimates that "between 60 and 75 per cent of the residents are not participating" but he also points to a small growth in the program. "I'd say we're successful in that we collected that amount (522,734 pounds) of paper, but with the amount of participation, who knows what per cent of the potential we're getting."

Riley, pointing out that he wasn't making any money said, "We were breaking even and now really all we do is handle the money."

Guenther, glad that Waterwood finally has a truck of its own to use, points out that Neenah is "about as big as we want to get" indicating that expanding to other cities isn't feasible at this point.

Although expansion seems unlikely, the project is being used as a rehabilitative effort by the school. "This is one of our higher levels of participation because it gets them out into the community."

In adddtion to the paper pickups, Waterwood rents and operates a small farm between Neenah and Oshkosh and raises vegetables and crops which they use and sell.

It also manufactures picnic tables which they sell.

First . . . and last chilling boat experience

NEENAH — The Charles R. Angell family, 243 Berkeley St., are selling their new boat. The first time they used it was the last time they'll use it and they've got good reason not to want any part of it again.

At about 2 p.m. Sunday Mr. and Mrs. Angell, their son Gary, 3, and Penny, 4, found themselves in Lake Winnebago about 150 feet east of the county boat landing on County Trunk A.

According to Mrs. Angell, the motor on the boat went out only shortly after they had pushed off from shore. They proceeded to turn the craft around, but when they did, waves filled the boat and in a "matter of seconds," Mrs. Angell said, the boat went down.

The Angells were in the water about 10 minutes before being rescued by James G. Schultz, 1579 S. Commercial St. Mrs. Angell said that she and her husband both swim and she took hold of her daughter and clung to life preservers. Penny had hers on.

Angell held his son Gary, who also had a preserver on, and clung to his boat until the Schultz craft reached them and they were pulled out of the chilly lake waters.

The family was taken to Theda Clark Memorial Hospital by Schultz where they were observed until body temperatures rose to normal.

Mrs. Angell said the children did not panic, though they were pretty scared. "There seems to be no after effects," Mrs. Angell said. Both children slept soundly all night.

Mrs. Angell's experience yesterday has assured her that she wants no more boating for awhile. "I don't want to be in it again," she said of the craft.

Solons favor spending cuts, no pay hikes

MADISON — The 1973-75 state budget is about to begin its loud and laborious journey through the state legislature. From its beginning in the assembly, it will more than likely spurt and sputter to enactment at the hands of a senate-assembly conference committee.

Two Republicans from Winnebago County, although they represent the minority party in Madison, hope to have an impact on the way the state spending package turns out.

State Sen. Jack Steinhilber, R Oshkosh, should play a role as a leader among Senate Republicans, who hold a majority of seats in that body and will be looking for changes in the Lucey administration budget that comes out of the Democratically-controlled assembly.

Steinhilber says the most important issue in the budget hassle is spending. It must be cut back, he believes. Like other Senate Republicans, he supports a Republican-sponsored direct-tax refund program to distribute the tax surplus that the Lucey administration wants to allocate through increased state aids to schools, property tax relief and other programs.

There should also be a ten per cent cut in individual and corporate income taxes, he said. That's included in another Senate proposal sponsored by the GOP.

"The income tax structure of ours is driving people out of the state," said Steinhilber. "I'm concerned about the future of our industrial and economic job base unless we do something about this tax structure."

State Rep. Gordon (Bud) Bradley, R-Omro, has a few things he'd like to see changed in the budget now before the assembly:

— Elimination of proposals to sell state prison farms, which he said is the "only enterprise run by a state institution that made money last year."

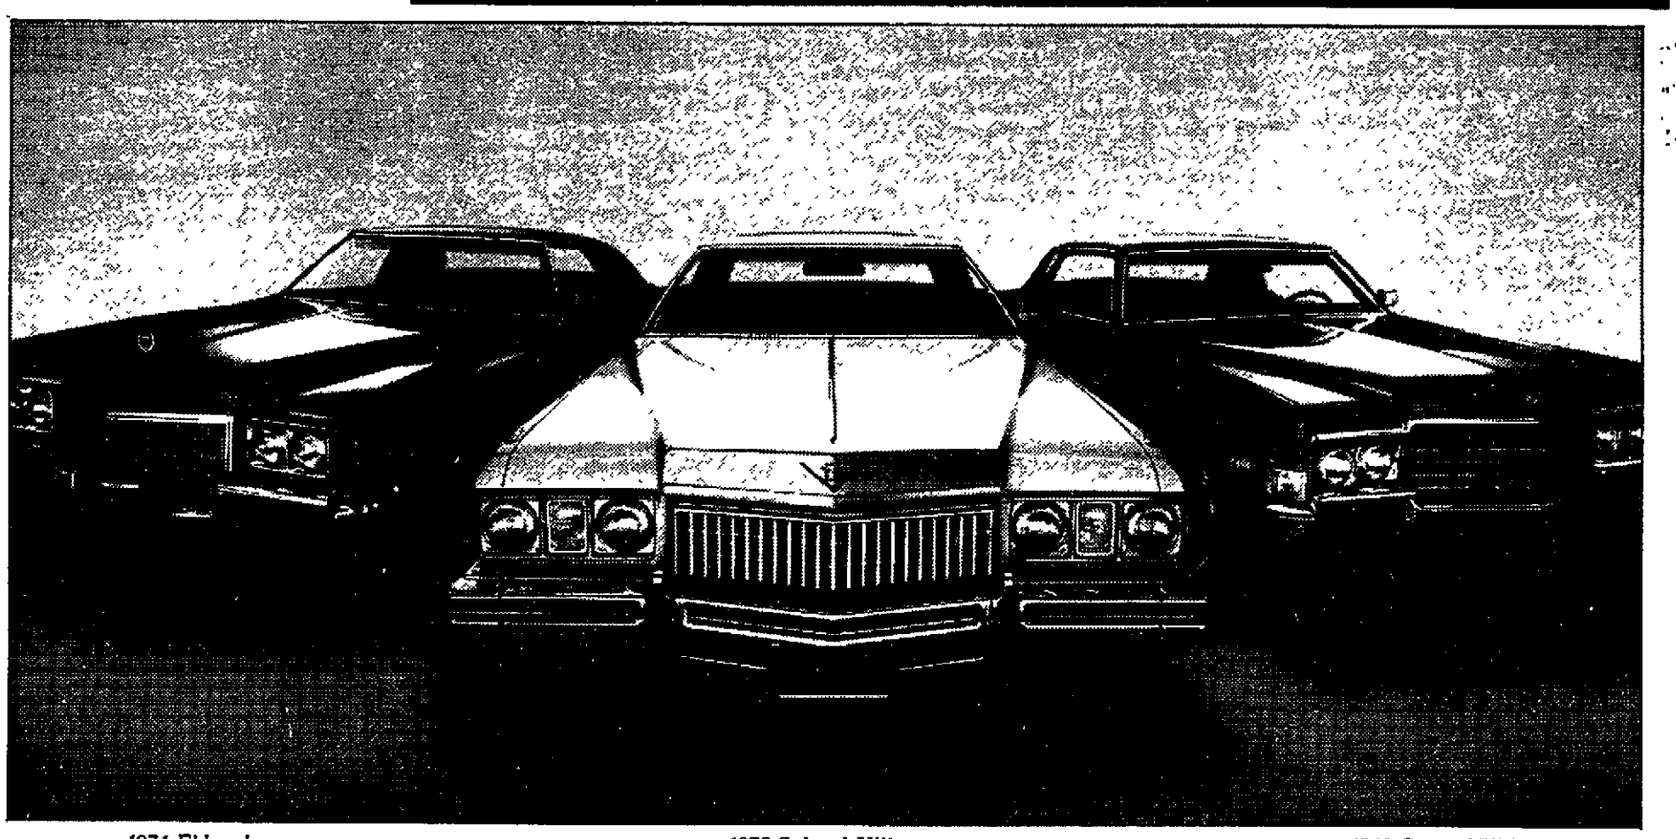

The seven prison farms, one of which is located in Winnebago County, provides produce for the state's prisons. They paid $164,000 in property taxes last year, he said, and finished with a profit of $22,000 for the year.

Prisoners that will soon be released back into society are often sent to the farms, Bradley said, which provide a "breaking-in period" and have a "great therapeutic value" for prisoners.

— Elimination of $80,000 for a governor-appointed committee on the status of women. "It's a waste of the taxpayer's money," he said, adding that he really didn't know "what the status of women is."

— "I'd like to see more money go to education and less to welfare," said Bradley.

He said the budget's provision for a state takeover of public welfare would be a big mistake. That alone, he said, would make for a $170 million increase in the welfare budget, which is tagged for a $454 million increase under the presently-proposed budget.

1971 Eldorado 1973 Sedan deVille 1969 Coupe deVille

Own a Cadillac? Of course you can!

Right now, you could be very, very close to the special pleasures of Cadillac ownership.

Because right now there exists a very special set of circumstances favoring the person who longs to be a Cadillac owner.

It begins with the beautiful new 1973 Cadillacs themselves. These cars are the finest ever built by Cadillac—reflected by the fact that the '73 Sedan deVille, shown above, has already established itself as the single most popular luxury car in automotive history.

There are nine great '73 Cadillacs from which to choose. And right now, your Cadillac dealer can probably supply just the model you want . . . just the way you want it!

If a new Cadillac is not yet in your plans, consider the pleasure of driving a Cadillac of another year. The great demand for new Cadillacs has made a number of beautiful previously-owned cars available. Like the 1971 Eldorado or 1969 Coupe deVille, shown above.

It's true. A Cadillac of any recent year will likely have more luxury, more convenience features, more power equipment than you'll find on many of today's new cars.

For a lot of reasons, there couldn't be a better time to visit your authorized Cadillac dealer than right now.

First choose Cadillac...then choose the year.

Little chance for meaningful welfare reform in 93rd Congress

WASHINGTON (AP) — Chances for major welfare-reform legislation including aid to the working poor appear to have all but evaporated in the 93rd Congress.

Optimism about such legislation had been voiced by Sen. Russell B. Long, D-La., chairman of the Finance Committee, after he talked with President Nixon about it at the White House Feb. 8.

But no commitments were made then and Long was told to talk further about it with Caspar W. Weinberger, the new budget minded secretary of health, education and welfare.

It has been learned that Weinberger reacted negatively to the plan advanced by Long Long told a reporter he will go ahead anyway with some welfare changes but they will be relatively minor.

The plan he was pushing, known as work bonus, was developed in the Finance Committee as part of a substitute for Nixon's family-assistance plan, a welfare-reform proposal the President described as his No. 1 domestic recommendation in his first term.

The Nixon plan twice passed the House but was killed in Long's committee, and Nixon has not renewed his support for it this year.

A key part of the plan was aid for the first time for the working poor—families headed by fathers holding jobs but whose earnings are so low they are under the poverty level

The Finance Committee rejected Nixon's formula for this but worked out its own alternative work-bonus plan.

This plan would have benefited about five million such families at a cost of $1 billion a year.

Under it, family heads would receive payments equivalent to 10 per cent of their earned income up to annual income of $4,000.

Above the $4,000 level, $1 would be subtracted from the payments for each $4 of earnings so that the benefits would phase out at $5,600 of income.

This plan was rejected by the House in conference on the 1972 welfare-Social Security bill.

But Rep. Wilbur D. Mills, DArk., said then that he would be willing to consider it again in 1973.

Mills has gotten through the House a minor bill which is in the Finance Committee and could be used by that panel as a vehicle for welfare amendments.

Long said it appears there is no chance for the work bonus. But he said some provisions on child support and fathers who desert welfare families probably will be attached to the Mills proposal.

However, Long added that other problems have arisen which may delay the legislation longer than he had originally expected.

One of these problems involves social services for welfare recipients and other poor families.

The cost of these was mounting sharply and Congress voted a $2.5-billion ceiling on them last year.

But Long says HEW now may be trying to restrict these services, particularly in such fields as family planning and child day care, more heavily than Congress intended.

Finance will explore this subject at hearings beginning Tuesday with Weinberger as the first witness.

The chairman said his committee may want to attach some amendments to the House bill to make clear its intent on spending for these services.

Long said his panel also may decide to make some revisions in the new plan adopted in the big 1972 bill federalizing the welfare prorams for three million aged, blind and disabled persons.

This plan is to take effect Jan. 1, 1974.

Under it, Washington would pay for and administer welfare for these three categories, and national minimum-payment levels would be established.

In most cases these levels would mean increases for present recipients, but a few states already pay more than the national minimums.

Floods not receding as river stays stable

By CRAIG AMMERMAN
Associated Press Writer

The Mississippi River is expected to remain stable and out of its banks for the next several days from St. Louis to the Gulf of Mexico.

Farmers whose crops are in danger of not being planted this year were reported to be working through the night in some areas to dry the land and attempt to salvage something.

But as new rains fell Sunday night and today in Illinois and Missouri, prospects for crops grew dimmer.

For the first time in weeks, the Mississippi was below flood stage at Davenport, Iowa, the northern end of the flood area. Downstream to the Gulf it remained above flood stage and crests at southernmost points were not expected until the end of the week.

At St. Louis, the river was beginning to feel the effects of last week's rains in Iowa and Illinois. It was expected to remain stable at seven feet above flood stage until Wednesday.

The new rains that fell today prompted the National Weather Service to issue flash flood watches for sections of Illinois, but no flooding was reported. In Missouri, a weather service forecaster said rivers would begin to rise again if today's rains amounted to two inches or more.

From Illinois south to Louisiana and Mississippi an estimated 12 million acres of normally dry land is inundated by the floodwaters. Much of it is prime farmland, where cotton, wheat, corn, soybeans and sugarcane should be growing but has yet to be planted.

The Cotton Carnival, an annual gala in Memphis, Tenn., was dulled by new rain over the weekend. The decorated barges that normally sail up the Mississippi for the celebration were grounded, as was all river traffic. And the cotton farmers of Tennessee, Arkansas, and Mississippi are beginning to predict that they may not even try for a crop this year.

The Mississippi was expected to crest at Memphis on Tuesday at six feet above flood stage. until the river crests there and at other points downstream, backwaters which have flooded the farmlands cannot drain into the swollen river.

Throughout the area officials said preliminary steps were under way to make cheap federal loans and federal aid available to public and private property damaged in the floodig.

The Misssippi River Commission estimates damages at $356 million in Missouri, Illinois, Arkansas, Louisiana, Kentucky, Tennessee, and Mississippi.

The real economic impact will be told in how much of the crops are finally harvested this year in the flooded valley. Farmers in areas where waters have begun to recede were reportedly working around the clock in attempts to dry their land.

One of them, R.B. Howard, of Clarksdale, Ark., said, "What else can you do? You got all this land, all this equipment, labor — you got to take a shot at it."

Time claims FBI records were stolen

NEW YORK (AP) — Time magazine says it has learned that results of wiretaps allegedly ordered by President Nixon were stolen from the FBI after Director J. Edgar Hoover used them to "blackmail" the White House, which was pressuring for his removal.

The magazine reported that when W. Mark Felt, now the FBI's No. 2 man, asked Asst. Atty. Gen. Robert C. Mardian who had taken the wiretap documents, Mardian told him: "Ask the President. Or ask Mitchell."

Time said on Sunday that Nixon had asked the FBI early in 1969 to tap the telephones of two New York Times reporters and four White House aides in an effort to plug leaks involving military policy discussions.

The scenario, according to the Time account, was as follows:

Hoover demanded and received written authorization from then Atty. Gen. John N. Mitchell to make the wiretaps.

In 1971, the administration decided to pressure the "irascible" Hoover out of his post. Angered, Hoover called Richard Kleindienst, then Mitchell's deputy, and threatened to reveal the "embarrassing taps."

No further move against Hoover was made; but, in the late spring of 1971, he discovered all his records of the wiretaps on reporters had disappeared.

Time said the taps continued through much of 1970 and 1971 but produced little information. Two government employes were transferred as a result of the taps, the magazine said.

Convoy at Phnom Penh but one tanker sunk

PHNOM PENH, Cambodia (AP) — The first Mekong River convoy to reach Phnom Penh in two weeks arrived today after losing a tanker to Communist fire.

Meanwhile, reports reached Phnom Penh that Cambodian insurgents overran a post 34 miles northwest of the capital last Friday, captured about 100 troops and slaughtered them.

Port authorities said the convoy of three tankers, three freighters and three munitions barges from South Vietnam came under heavy attack from shore fire 26 miles from Phnom Penh. One of the tankers carrying petroleum was sunk and two of the freighters were set ablaze by rocket fire. But the freighter crews put out the fires.

The crew of the tanker Vera No. 1 reportedly jumped overboard before she sank and government gunboats escorting the convoy picked all of them up.

The convoy traveled the 60 miles from the South Vietnamese border to the outskirts of the capital under an umbrella of American and Cambodian jet fighters dropping 500-pound bombs along both banks of the river. The jets could be seen from Phnom Penh swooping in low for attacks on suspected Communist positions 12 miles down river.

The convoy was the first to brave the Mekong since April 23 and brought sorely needed fuel and other supplies. The Cambodian insurgents have occupied long stretches along the Mekong for the last three months, and within the last month only five small convoys have made it to Phnom Penh. The government has had to ration fuel, and on an American airlift is supplying it with aviation fuel.

The government post overrun Friday was at the village of Kampong Tralach. One of the garrison who made it back to Phnom Penh said 30 of the defendere escaped, but the insurgents herded the rest to the bank of the Tonle Sap river and killed them. This is the usual fate of prisoners taken bz the Cambodian Army alsō.

It was the second time last week that the insurgents captured a large number of government soldiers. On Monday, about 580 were reported led away after a battle near Neak Luong, the Mekong ferry crossing southeast of Phnom Penh.

Lebanese tension eases despite guerrilla attack

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Tension between the Lebanese government and the Palestinian guerrillas was reported easing today despite a guerrilla attack on a border post in the northern part of the country.

Mediators from other Arab governments met Sunday with Lebanese and Palestinian officials in efforts to maintain the cease-fire agreed to last week after two days of hard fighting.

The secretary-general of the Arab League, Mahmoud Riad, met with President Suleiman Franjieh and later said the situation was "improving."

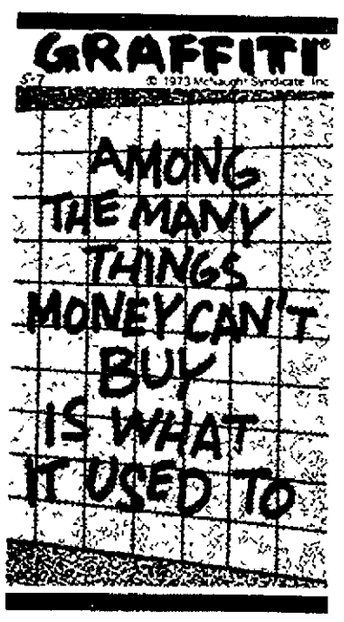

Envoys from Egypt, Syria, Algeria and other Arab countries had contacts with Yasir Arafat, the leader of the Al Fatah guerrillas, and he withdrew a threat to break off talks and leave the country.

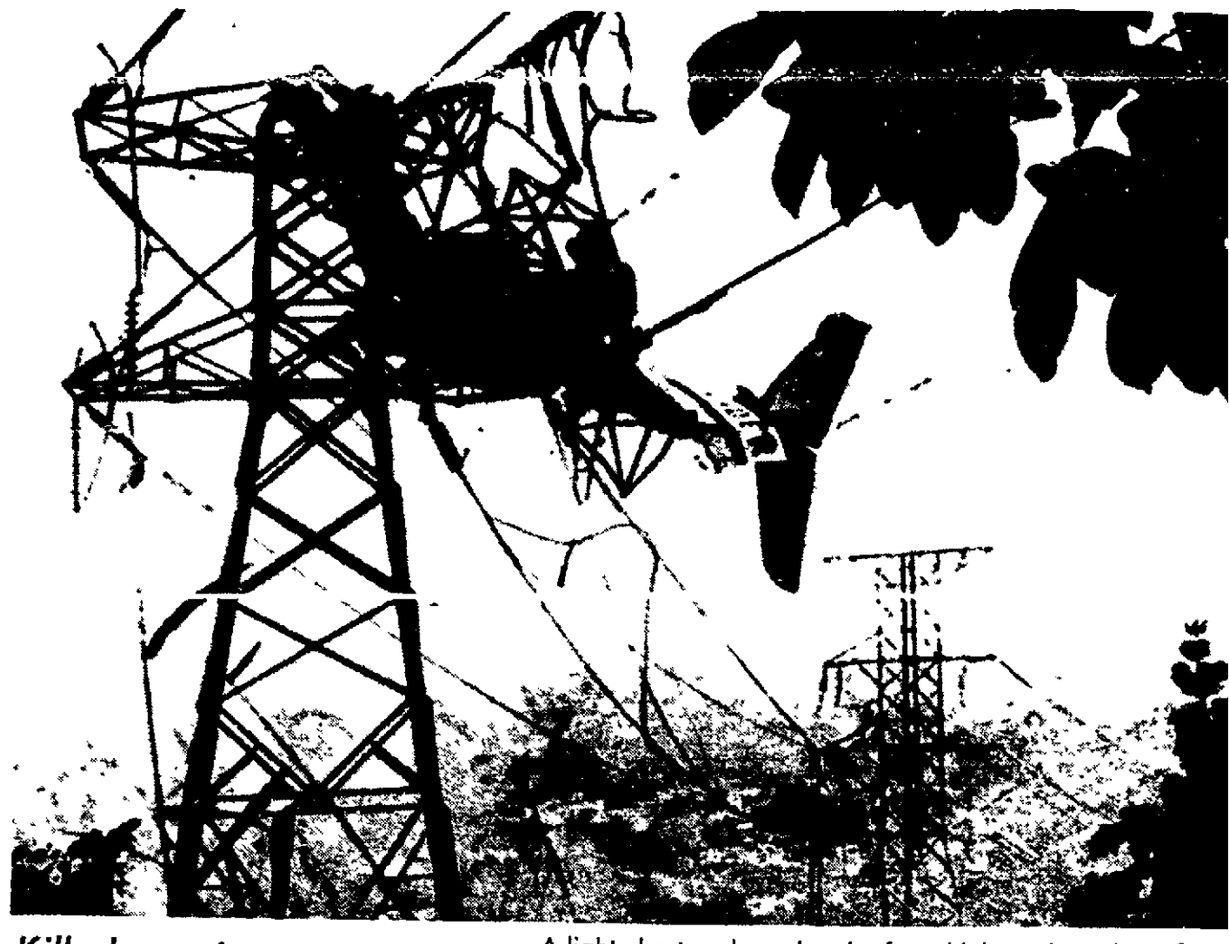

The mediators were said to have suggested amending the 1969 Cairo agreement which ended heavy fighting then between the Lebanese army and the guerrillas and laid down ground rules for guerrilla activity in Lebanon.

The Army forced the guerrillas out of southern border areas last September after Israeli raids. Most of the guerrillas moved into the 15 Palestinian refugee camps scattered about the country and control them as autonomous territories.

The government wants a new agreement to remove this "state within a state," as President Franjieh calls it. But the guerrillas maintain there should not be any tampering with the accord.

The attack on the border post 69 miles north of Beirut was the only cease-fire violation reported Sunday. The defense ministry said guerrillas attacked with rockets and machine guns and took 11 policemen captive. Army reinforcements drove the Palestinians off, and the policemen were released unharmed a short time later, the ministry said.

Plans being made for 2nd annual auction at Kaukauna St. Marr

KAUKAUNA — Mr. and Mrs. Marvin Hietpas have been named co-chairmen for the second annual auction and parish picnic planned June 2 and 3 at LaFollette Park by members of St. Mary Catholic Church.

District chairmen have been appointed and they are in the process of contacting residents for donations of items suitable for sale at the auction. Business places throughout the area are also being contacted. This will permit preparation of a list of items to be sold.

Trucks will be available to pick up larger items a few days prior to the event while donors of smaller items are being asked to bring these items to the auction site on the mornings of the event.

Arrangements are being made to secure one large and several small tents in which various activities will be housed to insure the success of the affair even if weather is inclement.

Salute to Eisenstein

7-8:30 — Channel 38 — The Special of the Week is a documentary of the life of Russian film director and producer Sergei M. Eisenstein. "Eisenstein" examines the artist's life and cinema techniques and includes clips of his films.

7-8 — Channel 2 — It's the farmer vs. the cowman in Gunsmoke, with Alex Cord as a mysterious, fast-draw named Brown who has sided with the sodbusters against a powerful cattle man. Character is important here, with a love affair involved. (R)

7-8 — Channel 5 — Sammy Davis Jr., returns to Rowan and Martin's Laugh-In and once again plays the white-wigged "de judge." He is also seen as Stubby Checkers, a 1950s character and as himself in a skit which shows how he broke into show biz. (R)

7-8 — Channels 9-11 — The Rookies drags in gimmicks to trick out an otherwise mundane kidnaping tale, involving Lt. Ryker (Gerald O'Loughlin). William Windom is the kidnapper, with Lynn Marta as the victim and Craig Stevens and Peggy McCay as her anxious parents. (R)

8-8:30 — Channels 2-7 — Lucy, still in a cast, is out of the hospital and back at home on Here's Lucy, with a bell handy near her bedside and Harry (Gale Gordon) being run ragged by his Swiss bell-ringer patient. (R)

8-10 — Channel 5 — Monday Night At The Movies has World Premiere: The Judge and Jake Wyler, the first of two shows based on these characters, but with major changes. Here the judge is Bette Davis, fearful of germs and staying in her antiseptic home, and Doug McClure is her detective partner. (R)

8:30-9 — Channels 2-7 — The Doris Day Show has a funny one with Roger C. Carmel as the woman-chasing general of an Iron Curtain country and Alan Oppenheimer as a free-lance writer who offers Doris' magazine an "exclusive" story. (R)

Hematology reading

Memorial Hospital laboratory technologist Mrs. Judi Ditzler receives a complete, seven parameter hematology reading after only 20 seconds in a machine that went into operation last week at the hospital. Previously it would have taken her 15 minutes to do the job manually. (Memorial Hospital photo)

Complaint about dangers near Oneida Heights

The executive director of the Appleton Housing Authority has written a letter to the Chicago & North Western Railway Co. expressing concern about a hazard that has arisen near the tracks which run close to the high-rise elderly apartment building on N. Oneida Street.

Mrs. Doris Cobb said "we believe you would like to be made awa e of an extremely hazardous situation which has come to our attention."

She said that twice in April, railroad crews were retrieving a number of logs which apparently fell from freight cars near the apartment building. If the logs had fallen a few yards farther up the track, persons walking in the area could have been hit, she said.

She said the authority wanted a solution and hoped the railroad might respond before the May 17 meeting.

Memorial Hospital obtains new hematology machine

Appleton Memorial Hospital last week added the operation of a Coulter Counter Model "S" to its list of automated services to provide "a fast accurate and economical hematology analysis for patients and physicians."

Memorial laboratory technical director John Greenall explained that the new machine provides a complete one-step test of seven blood parameters every 20 seconds. The seven basic blood parameter analysis covers hemoglobin, hematocrit, red blood cell count, white blood cell count, mean cell volume, mean cell hemoglobin, and mean cell hemoglobin concentration.

The system utilizes the unique Coulter Principle which is based on electrical differences between blood cells and common saline-type dilutants Blood cells are poor conductors while saline dilutants are good electrical conductors. As the blood cells pass through a small opening innthe system, it creates a change in the electrical current which not only counts the cells, but also records relative cell size.

The red and white blood counts are actually performed in triplicate on the machine. Should one count fail to be in agreement with the other two counts, it is rejected and the remaining two are averaged. If all three dounts disagree, all counts are rejected.

Operation is simple. The lab technologist places the patient's blood sample under an aspirator which automatically will draw 1cc. of anticoagulated blood when the system is actuated. From that point on all dilutions and analyses are performed automatically.

This entire operation would normally require 15 minutes when done manually by a laboratory technologist. The swift, 20-second machine read-out is considered complete and accurate, rejecting samples should there be a malfunction. The machine also pinpoints the trouble spot to the operator.

The automated procedures are reliable and not subject to errors in judgment or interpretation.

The results of the test go to a computer which prints the analyzed data on a card. The Coulter Counter digital read-outmethod significatly minimizes any possible mistaken interpretation of results.

Greenall reports that the machine replaces one lab technologist who can be freed to work in other areas within the hospital laboratory, thus keeping cost of hematology tests the same.

Lakeland president to speak at Riverview

Introducing a $13,500 sedan that promises the most remarkable driving experience of your life: the new Mercedes-Benz 450SE

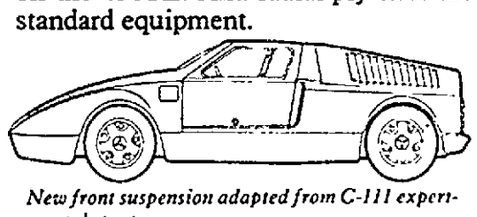

YEARS OF intense engineering effort were invested in the new Mercedes-Benz 450SE. Technical advances everywhere combine to produce handling response, security and stability that may well surpass any Mercedes-Benz sedan yet built, according to the engineers.

New front suspension

This car's sense of control is uncanny. The 450SE goes where you aim it—so precisely, that even veteran Mercedes-Benz drivers may find themselves astonished.

The reason: a zero steering offset front suspension system, adapted from the 180-mph C-111 experimental coupe.

Rear suspension design is the same fully independent system you will find on the 450SL. And radial-ply tires are standard equipment.

New front suspension adapted from C-111 experimental sports car.

The 450SE's designers wanted to keep the car as unruffled as possible—even in sudden, violent maneuvers.

2.7 turns lock-to-lock

An already superb power steering system was reworked to transmit an even surer road feel. Steering response has been improved, too. The 450SE goes from full left to full right in only 2.7 turns of the steering wheel—a figure unmatched by any domestic luxury sedan.

Under the hood is a 4.5 litre electronically fuel-injected V-8. And specifically designed to mate with this engine is a 3-speed automatic gearbox with a floor-mounted shift lever.

A disc brake on every wheel

In the new Mercedes-Benz 450SE a ring of air scoops is built into the inside of each wheel. Purpose: to bathe all four disc brakes in a steady gust of air. No domestic luxury sedan even employs 4-wheel disc brakes. Mercedes-Benz has used this system in its sedans for nearly a decade. Of course, the 450SE carries on in this tradition.

Shaped in the wind tunnel

Its designers gave the 450SE a shape that owes much to aerodynamics.

Massive windshield wipers are meant to harness the car's airflow to stay flat on the glass, even at maximum speeds. Vanes on the forward pillars and catch gutters on the rear window are placed there to scoop rain over the roof and away from the side and rear windows. Ribbed taillight lenses were designed to use the car's own air turbulence as a constant "scrubber" in rain and slush—staying visible to following traffic.

Compact outside, surprising inside

This spacious 5-passenger sedan only needs a turning circle of 37.5 feet—more than 7 feet smaller than any domestic luxury sedan. The 450SE itself is smaller, too. It is narrower and over 2.9 feet shorter. Surprise: in most vital respects, this new Mercedes-Benz gives you equal room inside. And there is more trunk space.

Front doors that breathe

The 450SE's built-in air-conditioning system is designed to prevent jarring blasts of frigid air; instead, controls are infinitely adjustable for temperature. Cooling or warming air is channelled not just through separate instrument panel vents but also via hidden outlets in both front doors.

A vacuum-operated central locking system is also built into your 450SE. One twist of the key in the outside driver's door lock silently secures all 4 doors, the trunk lid and the gas port.

Besides that air-conditioning system, standard equipment includes power steering and brakes; automatic transmission; electric windows; AM/FM stereo receiver; tinted glass; twin front fog lights and front- and rear-seat armrests.

The brief option list includes: leather upholstery; electric sun roof and fitted luggage.

The final significance

The 450SE incorporates more safety thinking than any Mercedes-Benz in history.

Mercedes-Benz motor cars: from $16,498* to $6,662*

Mercedes-Benz offers a vast range of models. Here are suggested retail prices for 8 of the most popular types:

450SLC Coupe	$16,498
450SL Coupe/Roadster	$12,773
450SEL Sedan	$14,605
450SE Sedan	$13,396
280 Coupe	$ 9,994
280 Sedan	$ 9,319
220 Sedan	$ 6,889
220 Diesel Sedan	$ 6,662

*East and Gulf Coast ports of entry, exclusive of transportation, other options, state and local taxes, if any.
Copyright 1973, Mercedes-Benz of North America, Inc

Some of it you can see, like massive locks fitted at every door; sturdy windshield and door pillars; wraparound front and rear bumpers; lavishly padded interior. Some safety thinking is invisible, like the fuel tank mounted inboard over the rear axle as far from harm's way as the engineers could devise—then encased in steel bulkheads.

Invitation to a remarkable experience

A new Mercedes-Benz inevitably stirs wide interest. So call your authorized dealer soon and arrange a test drive.

Rock flower creates eye-catching display

BY CAPPY DICK

A flower that appears to grow from a rock under a glass is today's project for boys and girls to undertake for handicraft provides fun at home. The flower actually is artificial; nonetheless it's an eye-catching display that will arouse much curiosity among friends who see it in your home.

Homemade curio

Start by searching for a suitable rock which should be flat as shown in the adjoining illustration. Scrub it to remove any loose soil. Glue green felt to the bottom so it won't mar any surface on which it is placed.

Next, select a small artificial flower that will fit under a large, inverted tumbler as in Figure 2. Preferably the flower should be a plant with small leaves and blossoms.

Press a wad of modeling clay on top of the rock. Stick the stem of the flower into the clay as in Figure 1. Finally, place the tumbler upside down over the plant, completing the curio.

Tomorrow: directions for making a key holder.

Lead series, 3-1

Canadiens rip Black Hawks

CHICAGO (AP) — "It's the kind of game we like to play," said goalie Ken Dryden after he and his awesome Montreal teammates had shutout the Chicago Black Hawks 4-0 to take a commanding 3-1 edge in their best-of-7 Stanley Cup final series.

"I should hope so," added Coach Billy Reay of the Hawks. "It doesn't happen very often, but they played a perfect game and there's not much you can do about that. Not only the Black Hawks, but they could have beaten anyone."

"They just didn't give us a chance," moaned Reay. "It's not too often you get everybody moving on a club the way they moved. I don't think they had any weaknesses at all."

Hawk General Manager Tommy Ivan, who in the past has coached his share of Stanley Cup victories, agreed and said, "Very rarely does a team play a perfect game. You just have to give them credit. Our goalkeeper was fantastic and we couldn't give him a goal."

Marc Tardif trickled in a goal at 1:08 of the first period Sunday and the game settled down to a defensive match until the second period when the Canadiens turned it on. Yvan Cournoyer hammered home his 13th goal of the playoffs, one short of the record set by teammate Frank Mahovlich in 1971, and Chuck Lefley followed with still another goal a minute and a half later.

The Canadiens now need one more triumph to capture their 18th Stanley Cup and they probably can get by with less than a perfect game at Montreal Tuesday night. The Hawks haven't won a playoff game in Montreal since 1962 and have taken it on the chin 13 times.

Dryden, the Vezina trophy winner wasn't seriously extended as he had to kick out only 19 shots to post his first Stanley Cup shutout. He said outside of two shots from the point in the second period which were deflected and another by Dennis Hull late in the game, he was never in trouble.

Odds are the Canadiens can wrap it up at home Tuesday night but Dryden warned "home ice doesn't mean that much to me."

Pat Kelly boosts average to .468

CHICAGO (AP) — The Chicago White Sox and Wilbur Wood kept on doing the same old thing Sunday—winning—but slugger Dick Allen tried something new.

The Sox won their ninth in a row and 13th in 14 games at the expense of the New York Yankees, 11-2. Wood won his sixth in a row to raise his mark for the season to 7-2.

Allen, who led the American League in home runs last year, bunted for a base hit to help set up the first three Chicago runs. It was the first time he had done so in two seasons with the Sox, and he admitted he did it on his own.

"No, they've never given me the sign to bunt," he said after the game, "but I'll do anything to put a run on the board."

Allen has been suffering from a jammed thumb on the left hand for the last three games, and confessed it hurts him to swing at times.

Still, he managed to swing for three hits in four official trips to the plate, as did teammates Bill Melton and Pat Kelly.

Kelly is now batting at an amazing .468 percentage, best in the majors.

Melton, who drove in four runs for the day and seven during the three-game series which the Sox swept from the New Yorkers, went down hard on a pitch that just missed his head in the fifth inning.

"I was mad"

Asked afterwards if he thought the Yankees' Steve Kline was throwing at him, Melton said, "Without a doubt. I was mad. But it was only one incident and you have to expect they'll pitch you high and tight."

But manager Chuck Tanner refused to be drawn into any thought of a beanball controversy. "The best way of retaliating is to beat their brains out, and maybe this fires our players up, too," he said.

Something fired the Sox up. The next inning they scored five runs, all on singles.

That gave the knuckleballing Wood an eight-run cushion, and helped him ride out 10 Yankee hits. "I was getting the ball up too much," he admitted. "But the way we're hitting it didn't hurt."

Yankee skipper Ralph Houk looked back on 17 Chicago hits and recalled that he had called the White Sox the best-hitting team in the league prior to the season. "I've seen nothing in this series to change my mind," he noted.

Crampton posts third win of season on tour

HOUSTON (AP) — "I told you earlier this year," Bruce Crampton said. "The best is yet to come.

"The good things are just getting started."

Bruce Crampton

Crampton had just polished off a one-stroke victory—he led by three to five most of the final round and it got close only at the end—in the Houston Open Golf tournament Sunday, his third pro triumph of the year.

"Nothing has changed from what I sad at Orland, Fla. The best is yet to come for Bruce Crampton," he said.

With three victories—only Jack Nicklaus can match that total—and a season's leading $153,678 in earnings to his credit, the statement could only stand as a warning to the rest of the pro tourists that the curly-haired Australian is ready to assume a dominant position in pro golf.He won it with a par 72 in the final round on the 6,905 yard Quail Valley Golf Club course for a 277 total, 11 under par. Former PGA champion Dave Stockton took second with a charging finish. He birdied three of the last four holes for a 69 and 278.

Aaron no factor

The current Masters titleholder, Tommy Aaron, wasn't a factor. He had a final 79 for 298.

It got close only at the end. Crampton had guilt a four stroke lead with rounds of 66 and 67 Friday and Saturday and never really was threatened.

"I wouldn't say I was conservative," Crampton said, "but I wasn't gung ho. I figured with a four stroke lead if I could keep on making pars I wouldn't be in such bad shape."

Pearson wins, others lucky in Talladega race

TALLADEGA, Ala. (AP) — David Pearson, Joe Frasson and Ramo Stott were among the lucky ones in Sunday's Winston 500-mile stock car race that wound up as a $1 million junkyard.

Pearson, 38, kept his cool and won the race—his fifth straight on the Grand National circuit and his fourth at 500 miles this year. He also will bank $26,095 to go with the $61,735 he already had won.

Stott, a 37-year-old veteran from Keokuk, Iowa, wrecked his Mercury on the 10th lap around the 2.66-mile Alabama International Speedway, and watched horrified as 18 other cars barrelled into each other in the worst pile up in National Association of Stock Car Automobile Racing history.

"I already had unbuckled my seat harness," Stott said later, "And had started to get out of the wrecked car. But then I saw it coming—cars spinning all over the place, ramming into each other, spewing tires, wheels, engines and parts everywhere. I decided to stay in the car."

Stott, who finished second in a race at Talladega last August and who currently leads the stock car standings in the rival United States Auto Club, said the engine cracked in his car. The other drivers said it was oil from Stott's car that triggered the chain-reaction crash that followed.

Buddy Baker, Cale Yarborough, Bobby Allison and Frasson, who were running in first through fourth places, rammed into the mess at more than 190 miles an hour—directly in front of many of the estimated 77,000 persons who watched.

Before it was over, 15 cars had been eliminated, some so bent and broken that they were unrecognizable.

Frasson, Wendell Scott, Earl Brooks and Slick Gardner were treated for injuries. Scott, the only black driver on the circuit, required hospitalization for a lacerated arm and a broken pelvis.

Pearson, driving the famed Wood brothers Mercury that he and A. J. Foyt used to win $175,000 last year, skittered through the debris and, with Baker, Yarborough, Allison and later, Richard Petty, out of action, had an easy time of it the rest of the way.

Petty, though not involved directly in the crash, punched a hole in his oil pan driving over the debris and had to park his Dodge after 51 laps.

Pearson's race speed was 131.956 m.p.h. With 53 of the laps run under caution, he needed 3 hours, 47 minutes and 23 seconds to complete his journey.

Donnie Allison, Bennie Parsons, Clarence Lovell and Cecil Gordon, all in Chevrolets, completed the top five finishers. They were at least one lap behind Pearson at the end.

Only 18 of the 60 starters were around at the finish.

Assistant coach punches official

Ernie 'D' paces U.S. win over Russia

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — Ernie "D" turned the tide and won the hearts in an 83-75 victory by the U.S. national basketball team over the Russian national team.

Six-foot-one Ernie DiGregorio of Providence personally pulled the Americans together after a slow start Saturday night and led them to their third victory in four games with the Russians on their American tour.

The aggressive whirling dirvish scored 20 points and handed out eight assists, some of them of the ultra-spectacular variety.

However, as spectacular as DiGregorio was, the entire game was played under a shadow that has plagued the entire series—the roughess allowed under international rules.

In all, 86 fouls were whistled (43 against each team), and six Russians and four Americans fouled out of the game. There was also an undercurrent of general hostility that came near explosion several times.

In the worst of these, American assistant coach Draff Young punched one of the official statisticians in the head during the second half after running down the floor and apparently losing his temper when asked to sit down.

DiGregorio said the style of play is "a lot rougher" than U.S. college ball. "There's no comparison."

He added, "When I drive in these games I'm real cautious. It's not worth breaking a neck."

American head Coach Bob Cousy said, "This was by far our best defensive effort. We knew we had to play defense to win because in such a short time it is difficult to assemble an offense. Thus, I had to stress defense and conditioning to our team."

Cousy credited much of the defensive improvement to the addition of Maryland's Len Elmore and Providence's Marvin Barnes, both of whom joined the squad Friday.

"Their addition gave us a full complement of big men and we could maneuver underneath for the first time. No longer did we have to hold back when someone got in foul trouble," Cousy said.

And, as for Ernie D, Cousy said, "Two months ago, I said pound for pound Ernie was the best college player in the country and I'll stick by that statement."

Russian Olympic star Aleksandr Belov led the Soviets with 17 points and 12 rebounds. Elmore and Barnes topped the U.S. squad in rebounding with 11 and seven, respectively.

The fifth game in the series is scheduled tonight at Madison Square Garden in New York City.

Judy Rankin wins crown

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Judy Rankin played what she called a "steady round" Sunday to win the championship in the LPGA Raleigh Golf Classic with a one-over-par 217.

Mrs. Rankin shot an even-par 72 over the 6,300-yard Raleigh Country Club course.

"With the weather the way it was, I thought it would take at least a 70 to win," said Mrs. Rankin, who started the day tied with Jo Ann Prentice at 145.

Miss Prentice had a final round of 77 and finished tied for fifth. Kathy Whitworth, who started one stroke back, could do no better than 75 and a tie for third.

Chako Higuchi, one of four Japanese players on the tour, shot a two-under-par 70 to capture second place with a 219, winning $3,400.

Gale Denenberg also had a 70 and tied for third with Miss Whitworth at 221, winning $2,365.

DUBUQUE, Ia. — Lawrence University placed third out of seven teams in the Spartan Relays here Saturday afternoon.

Lawrence took one first place and that was in the pole vault by Dace Rosene. Second places were gathered by Lloyd Nordstrom in the pole vault; Oliver Toliver, long jump; Steve Newman, discus; and Stu Goldsmith in the 220 yard dash.

Kimberly girls win FVA title

The final team scores for the Fox Valley Association girls track meet held Saturday was incorrectly reported to the Post-Crescent. The corrected team totals have Kimberly winning the meet with 43 points and Oshkosh North finishing in second place, with 42 points.

The mistake came when the points were added, and North was inadvertently awarded an extra first place finish.

Tires, rain give Pilots trouble

CLINTON, Iowa (AP) — Unlike the mighty Casey of Mudville baseball fame who finally succeeded in striking out, the Danville nine didn't even get to bat.

The team left Danville, Ill., by bus Saturday for a 200-mile trip to Clinton for a Midwest League baseball game.

The squad had gone only about 20 miles when the bus had a flat tire. A spare tire was put on, but it blew out with some 90 miles still to go.

A call to Danville brought a school bus to pick up the stranded team, and it arrived with the erstwhile squad at 8:45 p.m.

Both teams were completing warm-ups some 55 minutes later when the umpire called the game because of rain.

Wildlife federation urges conservation education

STEVENS POINT, Wis. (AP) — The Wisconsin Wildlife Federation, outlining plans to make more noise of its own, says the state ought to work harder to protect its outdoors against abuses of the tourist industry.

Delegates to a weekend convention adopted a resolution which suggests Wisconsin spend as much money to educate citizens about conservation needs as it spends subsidizing tourism advertising.

Promotions which encourage out-of-state visitors to congest campgrounds and recreation sites "tend to magnify rather than solve" the state's efforts to avoid overworking its natural resources, the convention said.

The resolution called for greater conservation education, and for the legislature to arrange a study of the effects which population growth is going to have on Wisconsin resources.

In an earlier draft of the resolution, sponsors suggested tourism promotion be eliminated as a responsibility of the Natural Resources Department.

The 24th annual convention adopted a resolution which suggests a halt to the type of dam, drainage and stream channelization programs promoted by land developers, Army Engineers and motorboat interests.

Construction of reservoirs and drainage of wetlands ought to be financed by the interests who immediately benefit from the work, delegates said.

Such projects should be subject to approval by the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency, delegate said.

The federation, representing approximately 80 organizations, outlined a program for more vigorous lobbying.

The group has hired a fulltime executive director, Dennis Madigan of Reedsburg, who is to conduct a member recruiting campaign, particularly among the state's estimated 700 conservation clubs.

It has a new monthly publication because the federation "wants everyone to know everything about our resource issues," Madigan said.

Charles Griffith of Minneapolis, regional director of the National Wildlife Federation, encouraged the state group to pursue expansion.

Other resolutions objected to suggestions that the Natural Resources Department be annexed to the governor's cabinet, rather than remain semiindependent under its own policy-making board.

The convention objected to legislation which would curtail professional fur trapping, but recommended bounty payments on wild animals be eliminated.

James Wareing of Sussex was re-elected president. Bernard Shearier of Wisconsin Rapids and Arthur Hagemann of Wausau were retained as vice presidents.

Creation of new jobs Lucey goal

MADISON, Wis. (AP) — Creation of 183,000 new jobs in Wisconsin by 1980 should be among top priorities for economic expansion in Wisconsin, Gov. Patrick J. Lucey said today.

In remarks for the Conference on Economic Development, Lucey said, "Business profits, creation of new jobs and sufficient income and all other spill-over effects of a healthy, vigorous economy must be...given their proper place."

"Too often in the past a climate of bickering, name-calling and blame-placing has worked out not to advance the interests of any one party to this dialogue, but rather, to hold back the common interests of all," Lucey said.

The governor said Wisconsin is experiencing a loss of some industry, slowed expansion of other industries and an insufficient increase in jobs and income.

"This condition has been attributed to restrictive state laws, relatively high tax levels, severe competitiveness in wage levels with other states and a host of items including our transportation system and even the state's harsh winter weather," Lucey said.

Studies, he said, "have demonstrated that we must find at least 183,000 new jobs by the year 1980. I submit that this be considered at least one of our minimum goals."

Lucey pointed to state legislation designed to ease restrictions on businesses including accelerated depreciation, a five-year loss carry-forward, changes on the state's income apportionment formula, increased inventory and real estate tax credits.

Works by students performed at LU

A recital featuring compositions written and performed by Lawrence University students will be held Tuesday at 3 p.m. in Harper Hall of the Music-Drama Center.

The program consisting of works by composition majors includes a Sonata for Flute and Piano by sophomore Carl Rath of Milwaukee, to be performed by senior Karen Lundgren, flutist from Rockford, Ill., and pianist Stanley Day, senior from Columbia, Mo. Anne Soloos, sophomore from Eugene, Ore., will play her own work, Three Pieces for Piano, and James Fradrich, senior from Menasha, will perform his piece, Sonata for Flute and Piano, with flutist Deborah Egekvist, senior from Edina, Minn.

"Three Sketches for Horn Trio" by senior Keith Jackson of Pickerel, Wis., will be presented by Freshman Jean Martin of Decatur, Ga., junior Rebecca Voights of Kimberly and junior Gail Sonnemann of Lake Mills.

Something of a more experimental nature will be Montpelier, Vt., sophomore Andrew Christiansen's Piece for Tape Recorder, Chorus and Radio. A 12-member chorus of Lawrence students will present this finale to the afternoon's recital, accompanied by a radio turned on at appointed times and a tape of sounds to go with the choral parts.

The students are from the studio of James Ming, professor of music at Lawrence.

Louis Blum dies at 81

Louis Blum, 81, Los Angeles, former owner and president of Twin City Home Improvement Corp. of Appleton, died Saturday in Los Angeles after a short illness.

He was a native of Russia. Blum resided in Appleton for 30 years. He retired six years ago and moved to Los Angeles.

He was a member of the Moses Montefiore Congregation and of the Knights of Pythias.

Survivors are his widow, two daughters, two sons, six grandchildren and 11 great-grandchildren.

Graveside funeral services were at 2 p.m. today at Moses Montefiore Cemetery.

Openings still available for summer school

Openings for the open summer school program, which will be for pupils from Intermediate I through senior high school, still exist in all areas, including reading, math, social studies, arts and crafts and personal typing.

Registrations will be accepted through Friday at all of the schools. Parents of elementary pupils may call the school to sign up their child. The rest of students may do so themselves at the office.

The school runs from June 25 through Aug. 3. It will be at Appleton High School-West. The fee is $2.

During the six-week period the pupils may earn credits toward high school graduation, make up missed or previously failed credits, enroll in courses for remedial help, or gain enrichment in special areas of interest.

The school will be an open concept, which means that attendance will not always be necessary. Classrooms will be open from 8 a.m. to noon and students may participate for all or part of the time as they and their teacher determine and as they and their needs or interests demand.

The students who are enrolled for secondary credit will be programmed for the full four-hour period, however. Those seeking a half credit, will be responsible for a commensurate amount of time.

Those involved in an enrichment program will be programmed for whatever time they wish.

Wolf closed at Winneconne

MADISON, Wis. (AP) — Boaters with large pleasure craft will be unable to negotiate the Wolf River through Winneconne much of this week, the Division of Highways said today.

The Division said the Wisconsin 116 bridge over the river has a burned out motor, and repairs are not expected to be completed until Friday.

The motor burned out when the bridge was closed, rather than open, so motorists are not affected.

Winneconne girl 2nd in spelling contest

MADISON, Wis. (AP) — Becky Ritke, 14, of Waterford won the 25th annual State Badger Spelling Bee by spelling the word "hallucinate" Saturday.

She beat out 50 other competitors in the event sponsored by the Wisconsin State Journal.

Cheryl Winter, 13, of Winneconne was second and Karen Fritschler, 13, of Sturgeon Bay third.

Courts

A preliminary hearing was set for next Wednesday in the case of an 18-year-old route 1, Shiocton man, charged with one count each of obstructing officers and having sexual intercourse with a child.

William Postel appeared Thursday before Judge Nick F. Schaefer in Outagamie County Court Branch 2 and entered not guilty pleas to both counts.

Postel is charged with the morals offense relating to an early April 15 incident with a 15-year-old Kaukauna girl at his parents' farm. The obstructing charge came after police said the defendant denied the girl's presence in the home when they found her there later the same day.

THE Post-Crescent

The new policy affecting Indians

All but two members of the Wisconsin Senate and House delegation have joined in introducing the bill to restore federal tribal status to the Menominee Indians, which should help gain the attention and action the bill deserves. And the bill should be a springboard for congressional action on Indian proposals made by President Nixon in 1970 and again last March.

The bill illustrates that reversing the 1961 termination of the Menominees as a federally-recognized tribe and the creation of Menominee County isn't quite as easy as it sounds. There is the matter of private land ownership in the county, most from the Legend Lake development, and the resulting tax burden if Menominee lands are taken off the tax roll.

Thus, the bill in effect, proposes a compromise of time to work things out. Menominee lands would continue to be taxed for two years to enable judgments to be made on how increasing federal aids would effect the county tax burden and what sort of local government arrangement can be worked out for the private landowners. This is going to require skill and foresight of the Menominees, state government and state representatives in Congress.

But this remaining problem should not stall recognition of the basic facts—that termination has been an economic disaster and is contrary to both the majority wishes of the Menominees and a changed federal policy.

The latter is what President Nixon asked Congress to make clear in his March message on Indian affairs. He also called for more self-government on Indian decisions, more federal loans for Indian governments and businesses, a decentralization of the Bureau of Indian Affairs, a trust authority to protect natural resources and a 15 per cent increase in the budget for Indian affairs.

In introducing the bill, Rep. Harold Froehlich said it "will be a signal to all Indian tribes across America that termination as a policy of the federal government has been repudiated and a new era in American Indian affairs has arrived."

The Menominee bill should be just that. It can serve both to repair the setbacks of the Menominees and to present a specific example of the need for the President's proposals which were set aside by the past Congress as being of too little national concern. That must not happen again in 1973.

Inner-direction to our lives

A couple of decades ago Philosopher David Riesman wrote that modern Americans had become "other-directed" people. Their behavior was largely influenced by the pressures outside of themselves from their peers and legal restrictions that governed their actions. The trend may be changing.

In earlier years, Riesman explained, man had been "inner directed." His behavior was influenced to a larger extent by such forces as his early home life and training and continuing into maturity of his own family, his church teachings, his school social tenets. Young people in particular were not as subject to peer pressure or approval. Those in authority ruled and they generally supported each other.

President Nixon has reflected the opinions and even more so the nagging feelings of a lot of older Americans that the "permissive" society we have enjoyed or suffered the last few years should come to an end. He has placed more emphasis upon tough criminal laws, asked for the death penalty, cut back on government financial assistance, called in many speeches for a return to self-reliance, coat 'n tie attitudes, the old verities of hard work and the Ten Commandants.

But while much of this is in the usual pattern of recalling the good old days as considerably better than they may have been, the United States of the 1970's is not the same as that of half a century ago. Aside from the obvious matters of scientific and mechanical inventions, the way we live has changed partly because of changes in the laws. This has evolved because of the way citizens look at laws.

In general we have retreated from the idea that man, through legal action, can regulate his weaknesses and appetites. Everywhere, in the last decade especially, laws dealing with morality have either been repealed or declared untenable by the courts for vagueness or for invading the right of privacy. Statutes dealing with literature and films, sexual habits, contraceptives, abortion and, most recently in Wisconsin, gambling, have disappeared. In attempting to turn things around through legal action, the President appears to be misapplying his concerns.

Instead it seems that we may well once again begin to emphasize that inner-directed status. Quite obviously this means a great deal more responsibility once more in the home and in the church, responsibilities that in both cases have been sometimes neglected or shrugged away. It might also be well for parents and church leaders also to be concerned, not so much with enacting some new statutes against pornography or abortion, but with sounder instruction and example on moral matters within the home or the parish family.

The pendulum swings in a great deal of American life from one near extreme to the other. But there can never be a return to exactly the situation we had at any one time in our history. If the "permissive" society ends, its successor will not be the society of 1873 or 1920 or 1950. But we could be more inner-directed once more.

Pay toilet on way out

Bathroom humor probably is one of the most distasteful, if highly popular among immature people. But one organization is using it for a purpose.

The Committee to End Pay Toilets in America—Ceptia—found out that people laughed at the cause. "Since there's little we could do to fight the tendency to laugh," the committee's president explains, "we decided we would capitalize on it to press our case." The case is that pay toilets are unnecessary, inhumane and discriminate against women since no one has yet installed a pay urinal.

The pay booths came from the early days of this century when the railroads installed flush toilets to replace privies at stations. To keep out the passerby, locks were put on and porters could open them when trains arrived. Eventually the dime slot was worked out.

It's grown into big business. The annual take is estaimated at somewhere around $30 million and city or county owned facilities get revenue as well. Those who argue that there would be no public facilities without the pay kind obviously ignore the current tendency to consider public rest rooms a necessity wherever the public gathers. The defenders of the locks who claim that undesirables are kept from lurking also forget that the ability to pick locks favor the unorthodox and handicap the respectable who happen to be without a dime.

Ceptia is having effect. Chicago just banned pay toilets in public places even though some unions are fighting the ordinance. More than a year ago the locks were removed from booths on the Pennsylvania Turnpike. Several state legislatures have bills prohibiting their use.

There have always been ways of getting around the payment or at least cutting back on it by groups holding the doors open for each other, stuffing the locks with tissue or taping them into the open position. Since more and more women are wearing pants these days, it's easier for many of them to climb over or slide under the doors, too. The discrimination might then be of the older or handicapped or proper.

It's a cause that is heading for success.

Nixon's aides get no sympathy in state

MADISON — Those Republican partisans of Wisconsin who have commented voluntarily or where solicited on the Watergate knavery have tried to suggest that somehow it will be cleared up, the President will be exonerated, and the consequences won't be as harmful to their prospects in a provincial competition that was already difficult.

But they are not likely to convince many of the faithful or the independents who are also thoughtful and who are aware of this state's proud tradition of maintaining a level of public morality considerably above that which is customary, or expected, in other jurisdictions of the nation.

The reality is that Watergate was a dangerous blow at the most untimely moment for the state party which is having the most severe difficulty in its modern history re-establishing itself as a credible alternative in the competition with a powerful, well-endowed, united and resourceful Democratic apparatus under thoroughly pragmatic leadership.

One searches for parallels. Perhaps the last comparable setback, in more local terms, was the almost unprecedented censure by the United States Senate of Joseph R. McCarthy more than a decade and a half ago.

Historians will almost surely agree that the Senate condemnation brought on the late senator's death and would in any event have ended his career. No one who studied state politics in that time could doubt, moreover, that it provided a massive aid to the fledgling Democratic organization that shortly thereafter started winning significant statewide elections and has ruled as a strong challenger or as the majority party of this state since that time.

Not so curiously, the leading spokesmen of the Democrats of Wisconsin have appeared restrained in their Watergate reactions. It is perhaps an unconscious application of the rule that the politician who is losing, or is worried, talks, and the rival who feels secure and advancing is content to let him talk. In the legislature the adage is that when a politician has the votes, he uses them, and when he doesn't, he argues.

Some of the leading men of the Wisconsin GOP who are not famed for their willingness to answer reporters' question have been unusually responsive. The White House staff, averred Rep. Vernon Thomson, one of the most sapient of the veterans of the Wisconsin political wars, was stupid. He repeated: stupid. Perhaps in retrospect he wishes he had prepared a statement, instead of responding impulsively to a query. It would have been useful to add that it was also an alarming example of stealthy chicanery.

The bitter desolation in the loyal GOP hearts hereabouts is almost surely the more painful because of resentment, successfully suppressed, arising out of other provocations, such as the haughty indifference of the White House palace guard now dismissed and disgraced toward congressional representatives and, not the least, the deliberate and callous disregard for the sensibilities of the state Republican establishment during the Nixon re-election campaign last fall.

The White House-directed Committee for the Re-election of the President ran its own show from stem to gudgeon. It was not for them to worry about the problems of electing congressmen or state legislators. That the Republican state machinery was starved for money and staggering under debt was a matter of utter indifference.

The Nixon men siphoned from the normal Wisconsin donor constituency an amount consistently reported as about $1 million, while the state and local organizations were having trouble making even a small dent in a staggering total of notes and bank loans, and the Republican state committee was relegated to a dusty walk-up office in a hard-to-find Madison warehouse.

As the whole world now knows, the CRP operatives were concurrently afflicted with such riches that the temptation to reach beyond the limits of law, reason and taste were too great for unworthy men.

"THERE CAN BE NO WHITEWASH AT THE WHITE HOUSE." — PRES. NIXON

Marianne Means

President jeered over Watergate

WASHINGTON — A columnist has few opportunities to share a significant national event with an apolitical group that is fairly representative of the country as a whole.

But I happened to be in such an audience by accident last week watching President Richard Nixon deliver his address on the Watergate scandal over television. The reaction was startling and almost unanimous. It is worth recording because of the nature of the group.

The audience consisted of approximately 75 men and women attending a conference here who were sufficiently interested in national affairs to interrupt their evening session to watch the President. The delegates represented labor, business, and academia. They came from all parts of the country. They included varying levels of experience and authority. Some were intellectuals; some pragmatists. They were atypical only in that all but three were white and they were better educated than the average citizen.

I will not mention the name of the conference because it was a private gathering and I was there under special sufferance. Nor would I wish to raise the possibility of retaliation by the Nixon Administration, since some of the delegates represented organizations or institutions with federal grants.

They rejected Nixon's excuses

It is sufficient to say that nearly all the persons involved are concerned with or alert to the problems of dealing with government in a variety of ways in their specialties.

And their reaction to the President's plea for public support was an unmistakable and emphatic "no." The President had no credibility with them when he began his speech, and he had not changed their attitude when he finished.

Nixon began his performance by saying, "I want to talk to you tonight from my heart." The room rocked with bitter laughter at the idea Nixon had a heart. The scene then went like this:

Nixon: " . . . what has come to be known as the Watergate affair . . . " ("Crime, you mean," shouted a voice from the rear).

Nixon: " . . . new information then came to me which persuaded me there was a real possibility that some of these charges were true" (scattered titters).

Nixon: " . . . I wanted to be fair." . . . (loud jeers, laughter, and assorted snorts of disbelief).

Nixon: " . . . It is essential not only that rigorous legal and ethical standards be observed, but also that the public, you, have total confidence they are both being observed . . . " (mutters and laughter).

Nixon: " . . . This office is a sacred trust" ("It used to be," a voice observed to laughter).

Nixon: " . . . who, then, is to blame for what happened in this case?" (more laughter).

Thumbing Nixon's nose

Nixon: " . . . Some people . . . will say that Watergate demonstrates the bankruptcy of the American political system. I believe precisely the opposite is true . . . " ("So do we," said a man sitting near the television set, and he leaned forward and pressed his thumb against Nixon's nose).

Nixon: " . . . It was the system that has brought the facts to light . . . A system that in this case has included . . a vigorous free press . . . " (applause).

Nixon: " . . . I wrote out some of my goals for my second term as President . . . " (scattered boos).

Nixon: "There can be no whitewash at the White House . . . " (loud groans and several derisive tee-hees).

And so it went. After the speech, the comments were cynical and negative. "He's another Rasputin," somebody with a confused sense of history said. "Who does he think he's kidding?" said another. "I can't believe him any more," said a third.

This group may have been more sophisticated than many citizens. But I was surprised at the vehemence of their rejection of the President's appeal that Watergate be put behind him while he gets on with more statesmanlike duties.

And that is dangerous for the President, for they are precisely the sort of people whose faith he must win if he is to proceed with government as usual the next three years.

Continue drug squad funds

Editor, the Post-Crescent:

Recent articles in The Post-Crescent have indicated a possible reluctance on the part of some Outagamie County Board supervisors to finance the county's drug investigation squad on an interim basis entirely from county funds.

As a concerned group that has for nearly three years been working to prevent all types of drug abuse, the Drug Council Inc. for Outagamie County wholeheartedly endorses the work of our two drug investigators.

Furthermore, we recommend that all citizens support this vital program by encouraging their supervisor to vote in favor of providing funds for its continuation.

Nearly three years ago several members of the Drug Council began to work with the District Attorney and Sheriff's offices toward the formation of this unique investigation squad. In July of 1970 the Outagamie County Board passed a resolution to hire, support and fund 40 per cent of the cost of a 3-man squad, provided that federal monies were available for the other 60 per cent.

Tragically, however, implementation of the program was delayed for nearly 18 months at the state level before the 60 per cent Federal funds were released. That time which was lost may be very difficult to regain in the already uphill fight against drug abuse.

Finally, the concept was approved and the program began in early 1972. Since that time, excellent progress has been made by the investigators, both in the areas of gathering information on the drug scene and drug pushers in this area, and in law enforcement. In addition, they have provided many educational programs for various groups throughout the county.

They have worked alone, and in cooperation with city and county law enforcement agencies, and those from state and federal levels. These two men have put in countless hours in their dangerous, dirty and often thankless business.

The progress they have made in the past year must not be allowed to falter. Continuity and difficult, detailed police work is essential to enforcement of our drug laws. The Outagamie County Board should appropriate the money for interim funding, as requested by Sheriff Cal Spice, at their next meeting on May 8th.

Hopefully, the favorable recommendation made by the East-Central Wisconsin Criminal Justice Planning Council will be endorsed when the Wisconsin Council on Criminal Justice meets in July to determine whether drug programs in Outagamie and other counties will continue to receive partial Federal funding.

If, however, federal money is not available for our drug squad at that time, it is the strong recommendation of the Drug Council that the County provide the full amount to continue this needed program.

Furthermore, enough money should be included in any budget request to enable our agents to make "buys" of illicit drugs and to pay informants. Unfortunate as it may seem, this type of expenditure is vital to the enforcement of drug laws. We must not hamstring our investigators by failing to provide them with all the tools necessary to make arrests which lead to the successful prosecution of pushers of dangerous drugs.

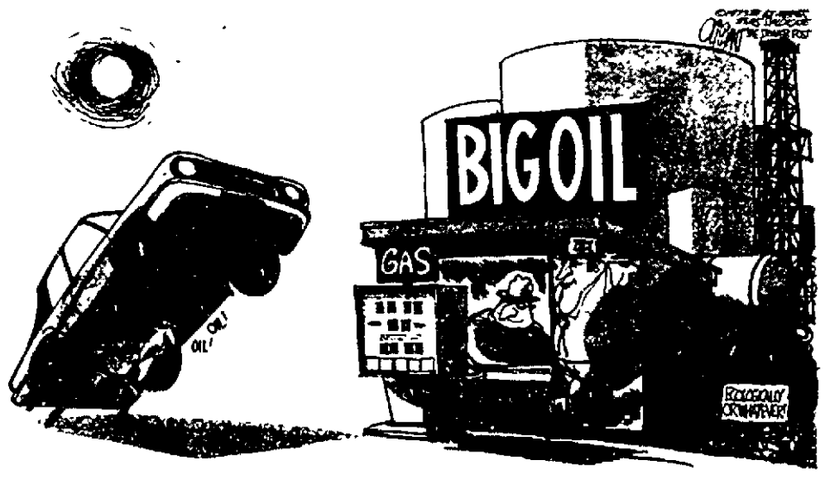

The citizens of Outagamie County owe it to themselves and their children to support Sheriff Spice, the District Attorney's office and our two fine investigators.

An overwhelming vote of approval on Tuesday would provide a real psychological lift for these men who have been working so hard on behalf of us all.

The alarm of fire on Monday night at half past 11 o'clock was in consequence of the destruction of Mr. Baker's residence, just south of the stave factory, 3d Ward.

The fire had made such progress when discovered that only household furniture could be saved.

In attempting to get at some few articles in the building, when in flames, the chimney fell on the owner and Mr. Rademacher, cutting them both badly in the head, burning the former some and the latter badly about the hands and face.

It is said there was insurance of $400 on the building.

Paper firms on Fox meeting deadlines

For all practical purposes, most of the local paper and pulp manufacturers on the Fox River have already solved their pollution problems, and the remaining environmental projects should be finished in another one or two years.

Of the 11 manufacturing companies, only one, the Appleton Division of Consolidated Papers, Inc., faces an uncertain future. And Consolidated officials reported to shareholders at the recent annual meeting that the Appleton mill had good chances of satisfying government pollution standards, and staying in operation.

Four mills in the Fox Cities are finishing major water treatment plants this year, with an aggregate investment of $8 million. They are:

—The Kimberly-Clark Corp. mill at Kimberly, where a $2.5 million treatment plant started at the beginning of January. In February, a lift station and a groundwood screen were added to the system. An unusual feature of the Kimberly plant is that the pipe discharging treated water is upstream from the mill's intake pipe; in other words, some of the effluent is recycled immediately.

—The Combined Locks mill of Appleton Papers, Inc. The treatment plant there was completed at the end of February, at a cost of $1.25 million. Another $1.2 million will be spent on an incinerator for disposing of spent liquor used in the pulping process.

—The Thilmany Pulp & Paper Co., Kaukauna. On May 9, Thilmany will dedicate its $2.4 million water treatment plant. The company was a party to the Wisconsin Supreme Court's decision last month, which approved the use of industrial development bonds.

—The Wisconsin Tissure Mills plant in Menasha. Primary and secondary treatment facilities there, costing $1.5 million, should both be on-stream by late July. The secondary treatment plant will be the first North American use of an activated sludge design, perfected in Europe.

These four plants will serve as an introduction to the other environmental projects, completed or planned by Fox Cities manufacturers. Companies in Neenah-Menasha lead the list.

Largest of the papermakers, the Kimberly-Clark Corp. got a head start on the pollution problem five years ago, when it built an industrial sewage plant for the Lakeview mill in the Town of Menasha. Now, equipment is being added to better separate suspended solids— clay and cellulose fibers—from the effluent.

The Badger-Globe and Neenah Paper mills in downtown Neenah will be connected to Neenah-Menasha's new municipal treatment plant, which is supposed to be constructed by 1975. All the internal improvements at the two mills have been completed, so that they would be able to divert their effluent to the new municipal plant (the present municipal treatment plant is inadequate).

Kimberly-Clark's last major air pollution source is at the Kimberly mill. Several years ago, two coal fired boilers were replaced with natural gas units and this spring, a third coal boiler will be converted to either oil or gas. This third boiler, according to company officials, is the main source of particulate emissions. Smaller boilers at the mill will be converted by July of next year.

The corporation will help pay for the construction and maintenance costs of the Neenah-Menasha municipal plant through a sewer use contract. Equipment for measuring, metering and sampling the effluent going to the new plant will cost about $100,000.

At the Gilbert Paper Co,, Menasha, a coal fired boiler was converted to natural gas in late 1972. That project cost $350,000, and solved Gilbert's air pollution problem, according to Gordon Kettering, president. The company's water pollution problem was solved by the long term contract with the Neenah-Menasha Sewerage Commission.

Wisconsin Tissue Mills has been using the municipal treatment plant since 1936, and with its new facilities in operation, the amount of effluent discharged to the municipal plant will decrease from 1.5 million to 500,000 gallons per day. In 1971, the company spent $410,000 on a save-all for its first paper machine, allowing it to recycle an additional million gallons daily.

Bergstrom Paper Company in Neenah constructed a water management center in 1967, at a cost of $1.2 million. The firm has had primary treatment since 1952. But, under state pollution orders, Bergstrom has agreed to use the new municipal plant. The company spent $60,000 in 1972 on equipment to recycle waste water.

The John Strange Paperboard Div. of the Menasha Corp. has also signed a sewer use agreement. In mid-October of last year, the Menasha firm completed major in-plant improvements, costing $120,000, to conserve and recycle waste water. Pipes, pumps and a collection tank that will combine the company's discharge itinto one pipe, should be finished by the middle of this year. This equipment, added to the cost of piping already installed to cut the volume of effluent, will cost $95,000. The company will also have to solve its air pollution problem, caused by coal burning boilers.

The George A. Whiting Paper Co., Menasha, has decided to install its own pollution abatement equipment, rather than join the municipal plant. The company is now getting quotes on the its 550,000 gallon capacity clarifier. When all the facilities are built, the cost to Whiting will come to about $200,000. A centrifuge, settling tank, save-all and new pipes are already installed.

The three paper manufacturers in Appleton are cooperating with the city municipal treatment plant.

Consolidated officials are trying to determine whether Appleton Division wastes can be treated at the city's plant, and whether the new plant will have enough capacity. Preliminary plans show that in"plant improvement would cost $1.5 million. The pulp mill has until September to present a plan to meet pollution standards.

Fox River Paper Co. has been connected with the city's sewage system for about four years, and converted its boilers to natural gas. H.P. Dixson, vice president, said the company has spent approximately $200,000 in the last five years, for metering devices, and for the boiler conversion. The company has also reduced its consumption of water by 20 per cent, and re-routed its sewers.

Riverside Paper Corp. connected with the Appleton sewage system in December, 1972. The connecting pipe, west of the Lawe Street bridge, cost $162,000 to construct, and prior to that the company spent $220,000 on recycling equipment.

S.W. McMyler, vice president, said he was upset by state and federal air pollution orders, based on plant specifications, rather than emission measurements. McMyler said Riverside's stack does not present much of a pollution problem. There is a shortage of gas and the cost of oil as an alternative to coal would cost an additional $200,000 over a two year period, he said.

Reinhold Vogt, of Appleton Papers, Inc., said $105,000 was spent at the Combined Locks Mill this year for an ongoing program of in-plant improvements, designed to recycle waste water. In addition to the treatment plant, the Locks mill is building a new sanitary landfill, which should be ready by June. Combined Locks converted to natural gas about 10 years ago.

Thilmany Pulp & Paper Co. announced its four-year air pollution program last fall. The first phase will be to cut back on pulp production. Eventually, the program will cost $3.5 million.

Statewide, pulp and paper manufacturers spent over $26 million on water pollution projects last year, and the estimated expenditures for 1973-75 are $86 million, according to the Wisconsin Paper Council. Prior to 1972, water pollution spending amounted to $73 million. (The figures include both capital and operating costs.)

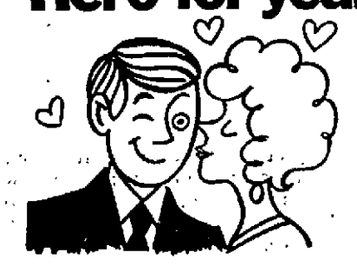

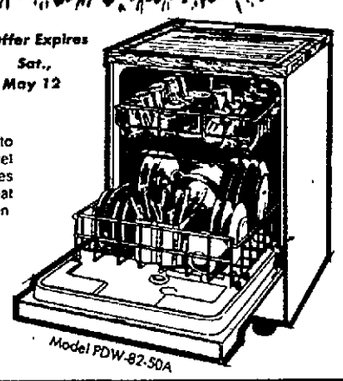

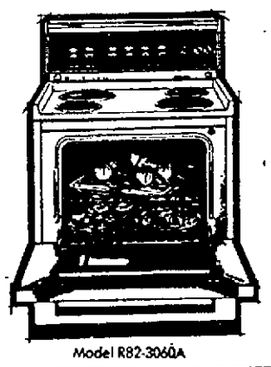

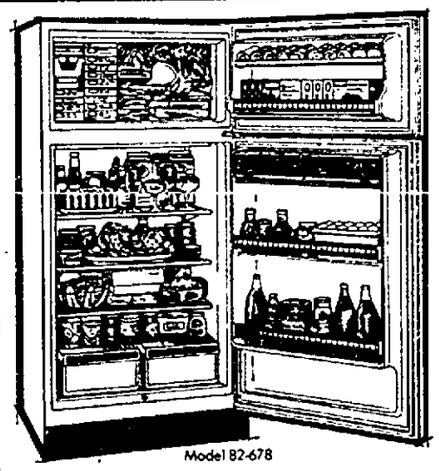

For air pollution abatement, the industry's 49 mills in Wisconsin spent $8 million in 1972, with a two year estimate of $24 million, and $9 million prior to last year.

According to the Paper Council, 19 manufacturers recycle post-consumer wastes. Last year, they recycled nearly 800,000 tons of paper.

4 arrested by Irish republic

DUBLIN (AP) — A search for guerrillas who blew up three British soldiers just across the border in Northern Ireland netted four men Sunday, and they were scheduled to appear in a Dublin court today.

The identities of the four were not announced prior to their court appearance, and it was not known if they had been linked to the killing of the soldiers. All four were believed to be members of the Irish Republican Army, and one of them was believed to have escaped from jail in Northern Ireland, where he was serving a sentence on an arms charge.

The four men were arrested in Dundalk, just over the border from Crossmaglen. It was there that two explosions killed the soldiers Saturday and injured several others as patrols checked wires leading across the border 500 yards away. It was believed that the explosions were set off from the Irish Republic.

The death of the soldiers raised Northern Ireland's confirmed fatality toll to 784 in nearly four years of communal warfare.

The arrests were seen as a sign that the new Irish government of Prime Minister Liam Cosgrave is stepping up action against the IRA.

Meanwhile, police sources in Dublin said a high-level inquiry would open today into the discovery that the telephones at police headquarters had been tapped for nearly a year.

Detectives raided an apartment in Dublin on Sunday and found the monitoring equipment and tapes of telephone conversations. The occupant of the flat had gone, but there were reports he was a British agent checking the Irish government's handling of the IRA.

One of the tapes contained conversations between Tom Fleming, head of the police Special Branch dealing with national security affairs, and other senior police officials. But police sources said no vital information could have leaked out because top secret telephones are fitted with scramblers.

Drug-resistant typhoid entering U.S. via Mexico

CHICAGO (AP) — A strain of typhoid fever that is resistant to commonly used drugs is being brought to the United States by travelers returning from Mexico, say three California researchers.

The type of typhoid currently is epidemic in northern and central Mexico, the researchers reported in the May 7 issue of the Journal of the American Medical Association.

"The coincidence of large numbers of American tourists and epidemic typhoid fever in Mexico virtually assures the continued occurrence of imported typhoid, particularly in the border states," the researchers wrote.

At least seven cases of typhoid fever caused by a strain resistant to chloramphenicol, a drug generally used to treat the disease, have been imported to the United States, said Drs. Ruth M. Lawrence, Elliot Goldstein and Paul D. Hoeprich of the University of California School of Medicine at Davis and the Sacramento Medical Center.

They added that their experience with a 27-year-old man who acquired typhoid fever in Acapulco indicates the strain also is resistant to another drug, ampicillin trihydrate, in amounts usually effective against the disease.

The patient finally responded to massive doses of this drug, the researchers said.

While this patient told them he had not drunk the water in Acapulco, he had eaten the local food and had drunk beverages chilled with ice made from the local water, the doctors said.

The resistance of this typhoid strain to chloramphenicol is identical to resistance of strains of severe dysentery in the past few years in some Latin American countries, the researchers reported.

Tokyo's pandas get new home

TOKYO (AP) — Tokyo's pair of pandas from Communist China moved into their new $150,000 air conditioned home today at Ueno Zoo and were delighted with it.

"They like it and we have nothing to worry about," said a zoo official as the bears frolicked, rolled and squatted on the floor. They took little notice of the watching newsmen and anxious officials.

Their quarters are separated by a glass wall. But officials plan to remove the partition soon to allow the bears to get better acquainted and, hopefully, mate. The new house is enclosed in bulletproof glass and has a medical treatment room and a bedroom. There also is a wading pool and an outdoor playground.

The pandas, Lan Lan, a 5-year-old female, and Kang Kang, a 3-year-old male, were presented to Japan last September when China and Japan established diplomatic relations. The bears have been living in a glass-enclosed cage that used to house a tiger.

Marriage in the rocks

HINTON, W.Va. (AP) — Blane Anderson and Sandra Smith are going underground for their marriage.

It's not that they're being pursued. But it was on a tour of the Lost World Caverns in nearby Greenbrier County that they became engaged last month.

On May 19, they'll return to the caverns to be wed.

Motherless children of Axbridge being kept in families by fathers

AXBRIDGE, England (AP) — Sympathy for the motherless children around Axbridge has welled up in a flood of adoption offers and cash contributions of nearly $200,000.

A charitable trust will be set up to use the money to alleviate distress. And all the adoption offers have been refused as the fathers of the children cling to what remains of their broken families.

The mothers of 48 children in Axbridge and the neighboring villages of Cheddar, Wrington, Congresbury and Yatton were among 107 persons killed in a plane crash April 10th near Basel, Switzerland. Sixty-three persons from the area died in the crash.

"We've been inundated with adoption offers," said the Rev. Anthony Martin. "Naturally, the fathers want to keep their children. They intend bringing the youngsters up themselves with the help of relatives. But this reaction is an indication of the way people's sympathy has been aroused by this catastrophe."

"Most families have relations and in-laws who live only a few miles, or even a few yards, away. There is no lack of local help or local good will."

One official said nearly 1,500 letters of sympathy have been received, some "from as far away as the United States, South Africa and Australia."

"We have had dozens of requests from British families to be allowed to take the youngsters during the summer school holidays," said the Rev. Mr. Martin.

Some people say they want to take the children into their homes. Others are offering to take hem with their own families when they go abroad, he said.

"Nothing has been decided yet, but some of these offers may well be taken up."

The Somerset County Council has sent two welfare workers to help the bereaved families. But the villagers rejected a proposal by the county council that psychologists be sent to study the long-term effects of the disaster on the stricken families.

"We're not guinea pigs and we don't want or need that kind of help," one Axbridge resident said.

Senator feared poisoning

HANNIBAL, Mo. (AP) — Former U.S. Sen. Edward V. Long, whose death is being investigated, "had been suspicious of poisonings in the past," says the Long family attorney.

Marion F. Wasinger said in an interview Sunday night that the Missouri Democrat, who was 64 when he died at his Brookhill farm near here Nov. 6, 1972, once "suspected that his daughter had been poisoned."

Miss Helen Dunlop, Long's long-time companion and secretary, has told authorities that, minutes before he died, Long told her that he thought he had been poisoned by eating candy from a box sent him as a gift.

Medical investigators are continuing tests on the contents of Long's stomach to determine if he had been poisoned.

Wasinger said that Long mentioned the possibility that his daughter, Mrs. Frank Miller, had been poisoned by drinking an alcoholic beverage during a trip to Las Vegas, Nev. It later was determined that Mrs. Miller, who still is alive, was suffering from an illness "somewhat the opposite of diabetes," said Wasinger.

Wasinger, interviewed by telephone at his Hannibal home, is representing Long's widow, Florence, in a $3.25 million alienation of affections suit against Miss Dunlop and in another suit contesting Long's will.

"Some physicians have told me that many people who suddenly become ill think the illness was caused by something they ate," Wasinger said. "The family believes that Long's death was caused by a tumor attached to the base of the pituitary gland."

Wasinger, who was present at the autopsy on Long's body last Thursday, said he heard one of the physicians say the tumor was a "cystic tumor" and that "even a cough could have killed him."

Tissues removed during the autopsy and contents of Long's stomach were under investigation by Dr. George Gantner, St. Louis County medical examiner. The results were expected later this week.

Pike County Coroner J. O. Mudd, who issued Long's death certificate, said the death had "all the appearances of a stroke."

Illinois man sought in weekend slaying of Milwaukee coed

SOUTH BELOIT, Ill. (AP) — A warrant has been issued for a Rockton man in connection with the killing of a Milwaukee coed.

Winnebago County sheriff's police were searching Sunday for David Dauchy, 25, of Rockton, Ill.

Dauchy was linked to the murder of 18-year-old Wendy Ann Vick, whose body was found Sunday morning in a South Beloit motel, when a key to Miss Vick's room was found in a car owned by Dauchy. The car was found abandoned in Edgerton, Wis.

Authorities said there was no apparent connection between the death of Miss Vick and that of Samuel Griffen, 52, of Beloit, whose body was found along Illinois 2 south of Beloit. He had been stabbed eight times.

Cardinal Larranona of Spain dead at 85

VATICAN CITY (AP) — Arcadio Maria Cardinal Larraona of Spain died today at his home in Rome, the Vatican announced. He was 85.

Cardinal Larraona retired two years ago as prefect of the Vatican's Congregation of Rites. His death reduced the number of cardinals to 140.

He was born Nov. 13, 1887, in Oteiza de la Solana, in the archdiocese of Pamplona. He was ordained a priest in July 1911, and was elevated to cardinal by Pope John XXIII on Dec. 14, 1959.

THE GREAT AMERICAN APPETITE.

America has a tremendous appetite. Not just for food, but for the natural resources that produce energy—gas and petroleum.

And we're running short of them, because the country is growing so fast, and using up its currently available resources even faster. People call it the Energy Crisis, and the current gasoline shortage is part of that crisis.

WHAT STANDARD IS DOING ABOUT THE SHORTAGE.

We want you to know that we're doing all we can to get as much gasoline to you as possible. In fact, we're making more gasoline than ever before in our history, up 15% in the last two years.

Standard refineries are running at over 95% of capacity (the practical maximum with available crude). This is well above the industry average.

What's more, our refinery through-put is up about 100,000 barrels a day since 1971. And we're now importing more foreign crude than in any other time in our history. Even though foreign crude is becoming more and more difficult to get.

Also, we want you to know we're working on new refining and conversion processes and new pipeline capabilities that will increase our output even more. And we're intensifying our search for crude oil to supply our refineries. This year, Standard and its affiliates will spend more on expansion, exploration and crude oil production than in any year before.

We wish we could say we'll solve the problem soon—and all by ourselves. But we can't do it alone. We need everyone's help. In the oil industry. In business. In government. And in every walk of American life.

WHAT YOU CAN DO.

If every American used just one gallon of gasoline less every week, there wouldn't be a shortage.

And there are many ways you can cut back. Walk a little more. Many times you can walk to the store when you have small purchases to make.

Form car pools. You and your neighbors probably go to a lot of the same places separately. Why not go together? To work. To the train. Even to meetings, parties and get-togethers.

Combine trips. Plan ahead so you don't have to make separate trips to the cleaners, and the drug store, and the grocery store.

Keep your car in top shape. A poorly tuned engine can reduce your gas mileage up to 10%.

Slow down. If you drive 50 miles an hour instead of 60, you can save about one gallon in ten. And take it easy when you start up. Jackrabbit starts eat up gasoline, too.

In summary, the gasoline shortage is no one individual's fault, but a combination of events. And it's up to all of us to find the solutions. And effect them.

SLOW DOWN
Save gasoline.

Appleton Wire develops new weaving process

Appleton Wire has developed a wire weaving process for the paper industry which eliminates the use of bobbins. The Appleton-based Fourdrinier wire manufacturer termed it a major weaving development.

Available in all meshes of wires, Alpha Weave is said to offer significant improvements. Donald Strutz, Appleton Wire vice president of sales, said, "minor variations caused by bobbin changes have been eliminated. Shute wires are blended throughout the weaving process, resulting in an extremely accurate shute wire count and a more uniform wire."

"The possibility of edge cracks, which sometimes occurrs with bobbin changes, has been eliminated," Strutz said. "Cross direction body cracks will be significantly reduced. Alpha Weave wires lie flatter. Better formation results from more uniform drainage. Improvements in operating conditions have been reported and we expect good acceptance of this product."

Rules for starting your own business

If you go into business for yourself, even at a time like today, when the economy is in a superboom, your chances of surviving even two years are no more than even.

That doesn't mean, though, that you should give up this traditional American dream. It merely means you should go ahead only after you have taken the proper steps to avoid the obvious traps, only after you have prepared yourself to win. Learning the fundamental rules is elementary common sense.

The questions in Friday's column guide you to the rules in today's.

To make sure that you don't fool yourself into thinking you are better prepared than you are, ask objective observers among your friends—and a lawyer, banker, fellow worker—to judge your qualifications against these rules.

Know the business

Know thoroughly the line you're going into and don't overestimate your own know-how.

Be certain you have well-rounded experience—in selling, purchasing, producing, whatever—or be sure you can get others to work with you at reasonable pay to fill in your gaps.

Provide yourself with ample cash and access to credit to carry your business through the first, most vulnerable years. Be sure you budget ample sums for start-up advertising and promotion costs, for buying stocks, for extending credit to your customers.

If you are buying an existing business, study the "Business Opportunities" section of your local newspaper. Compare the prices asked for businesses in the field that interests you with the price being asked for the business you think you want to buy.

Ask the appropriate trade association in the field in which you want to work for ideas and leads on companies which may be for sale. One catalogue of these associations, which you may be able to xind in your library, is the Directory of National Trade Associations.

Go to the nearest office of the Small Business Administration for further guidance on buying a business. (Or write to the SBA in Washington, D.C., and ask what pamphlets the agency may have available that will guide you. The SBA has 10 regional and 71 district field offices. Its Washington address is: 1441 L St., N.W., Washington, D.C. 20416.)

Do not even attempt to buy or launch a business without the help of a competent lawyer and a competent accountant—plus all the assistance you can get from the appropriate officer at the bank with which you do business.

If you want the help of a professional consultant, ask the American Management Assn. (135 W. 50 St., New York, N.Y. 10020) for help in finding a qualified one.

What it'll cost to start

But what does it cost to start up your own business today? Here are rough estimates, put together a while ago by Changing Times magazine for several different types of small businesses. If anything, the totals will be much higher now and will rise relentlessly year after year.

Your own field of interest will be similar to or will fall into one of these categories.

The cost range of starting a business of your own in auto parts and accessories is $10,000-$17,000. For a beauty salon it is $10,000-$18,000; for a coffee shop, $23,000-$46,000; for a coin operated carwash, $22,000-$27,000; for a coin-operated laundry-cleaner, $50,000-$75,000.

The cost range to start an independent drugstore is $35,000-$50,000. For a mobile home park it is $220,000-$330,000, and for a retail plant nursery it is $40,000-$60,000. To start a preschool daycare center, the cost range is $50,000-$65,000.

And these totals cover only the bare minimums of starting. A deposit on rent, basic fixtures and minimum equipment, an initial inventory just enough to justify opening the doors, etc. For instance, that fat figure for the mobile home park doesn't include property costs—surely one of the central expenses. The modest total for the coffee shop covers just renovation and equipment for a 25-seat shop based on a "rule of thumb" capital requirement. The total for the independent drugstore covers a small store with projected annual gross sales of only $150,000.

Even with these restrictions, I suspect the figures are spectacular underestimates in light of 1973 prices and wages.

Half of nation's poor not aided

WASHINGTON (AP) — Only half the nation's poor are being served by federal food programs, the Senate Hunger Committee says.

The committee said in a report issued Sunday that the Midwest appears to be most lax in seeing that federally subsidized food programs reach impoverished residents.

The South, described as the worst offender five years ago, is now much more responsive, the report said.

The committee's staff prepared current statistical profiles on counties, showing the number of poor and how many are helped by either surplus commodity distribution or food stamps.

A comparison with a 1968 hunger study showed only a small drop in counties considered to be offering inadequate antipoverty food programs.

The report estimated that 48 per cent of the nation's more than 26 million poor persons were receiving no food assistance of any kind.

Doctor Tells Kansas Man How To Help Shrink Painful Swelling Of Hemorrhoidal Tissues

...caused by inflammation and infection.

Prairie Village, Kan.—Mr. Joseph Sutton reports: "My doctor suggested suppositories. I chose Preparation H suppositories. On a physical check-up my doctor noted how effectively it works."

(Note: Doctors' tests have proved Preparation H® actually helps shrink swelling of hemorrhoidal tissues caused by inflammation. It's so effective that in many cases, the first applications give prompt, temporary relief from pain and itching in such tissues. There's no other formula like doctor-tested Preparation H.)
